A Sky Curtain
Buck at the Wheel
What IS Aggressive War?
Wales and Solon

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

SAN SIMEON, CAL., FEB. 17—"To me the moon does not look as you have painted it," said the lady to Whistler. "No," said he; "don't you wish it did?"

Even Whistler's imagination could not invent such a sky as you saw looking over the Pacific, 1000 feet up the hill of the Enchanted summit" at 4 o'clock this morning.

A curtain of stars drops down almost to the ocean's edge, as though separating America from Asia. And below the stars right on the water, hangs a small, sickle-shaped moon, blood red.

"I've seen all kinds of moons, driving at night," said "Whistle" McAninch, who drives for Steve Zegar, "but that's a new one on me."

He drives carefully in the moonlight-starlight. "Because there are fifty bison in this field and I'm not supposed to hit one."

One of the fifty, shedding and shaggy, crosses the road and bounds up a steep bank, as agile as a rabbit. With animated pastures, water and rock-salt, no Indians to annoy them or wolves to bite their calves, these are happy bison, convinced, probably, that they are the favored herd of the Great Spirit.

At San Luis Obispo, fifty-two miles from here, where the Southern Pacific "Lark" leaves you at 2 a. m. a tired man is drinking water at the wheel of a Pontiac.

"That's Buck Hoover," said McAninch. "You'll notice that he's chained to his wheel."

He is indeed, having undertaken to break world records by driving 100 hours without food or sleep—water allowed.

"He can stand what no other man can stand because his heart beats faster than any other heart," says McAninch, hero worshipper. "He has been driving forty-eight hours now, and I think he'll make it."

Buck Hoover, Texas cowboy and ambulance driver at the front in the big war, finds life dull in peace, so he tries this.

The American Legion keeping track of his 100-hour "stunt," will raffle off the Pontiac at a dance later. Buck will share the excess profits, also Richfield Oil and Firestone Tires used in the 100-hour grind will contribute something.

So Buck Hoover will get, perhaps, $1000 for taking ten years off his life. A modern Ixion chained to the wheel, his courage and ambition to excel are strangely used.

But chauffeurs and brakemen, and the tall girl with yellow hair who answers "You bet" when you ask for coffee, all admire him. He'll get more praise than he would have got had a piece of

6-INCH SNOWFALL CRIPPLES TRAFFIC

COLD SUNDAY FOR HUB FORECAST AS CITY DIGS OUT; NEW STORM DUE

Six inches of snow had fallen up to 3 p. m. today in a storm that the Weather Bureau predicted would probably continue through the night, increasing in intensity before strengthening northwest winds which will approach gale force.

Over all New England with its robins, budding lilac bushes and other harbingers of spring, the storm laid a deep, heavy blanket, disrupting all vehicular traffic and making a joke of transportation schedules.

For tomorrow the weather man holds little of promise. Sunday will be cloudy and much colder and there is a strong possibility, he declared, that another snowstorm will jump in to direct the brief cold wave.

The first casualty directly traceable to the storm occurred at the Greenwood station, Wakefield, when John H. Hines, 57, was struck by a Boston & Maine locomotive. Snow clinging to his spectacles prevented him from seeing the approaching train. He was painfully, but not seriously injured.

Boston cared for the threat of a blizzard by placing 1000 men and 140 big plows at work in the streets. One hundred of the plows were used in the city proper and the remainder in outlying districts. In addition, 100 teams were used to cart away the slushy harvest.

Scores of men stormed the city

1 KILLED 2 MISSING IN BELLOWS FALLS BLAST

Brattleboro, Vt., Feb 18 (AP)—One man was blown to pieces, two are missing and many others were cut by flying fragments at Bellows Falls today when 100 pounds of dynamite exploded in a shanty on the bank of the Connecticut river.

The entire village was shaken and many plate glass windows were smashed in the business section.

William J. O'Brien of North Walpole, N. H., who had charge of the dynamite, part of the supply being used in power development work by the Sherman Construction Co., was blown into small pieces.

William Steele, aged 26, and Fred Steele, 19, brothers, are missing and it is feared they also were killed.

An official of the company says the Steele brothers were sent by a foreman to get dynamite and have not been seen since.

An undertaker reported finding a piece of scalp with hair of a color different from that of O'Brien's.

The company is making a wide search, running down reports that the Steeles had been seen, but is

PROFESSOR'S SON SAYS HE STOLE 14 AUTOS

Northampton, Feb. 18 (NSB)—Orville Hankins, 15, son of Prof. Frank H. Hankins of Smith College, was in District Court today charged with being a delinquent child. Hankins was captured driving an automobile owned by Norman E. Hoyt. Hankins confessed to the taking of 14 cars in the past two weeks, according to the police, and incriminated four other boys as well as himself. The case was continued until February 24.

NEW HAMPSHIRE 'SPY' GIVEN YEAR IN GERMANY

Dusseldorf, Germany, Feb. 18 (AP)—Guido Meisel, American chemist of Portsmouth, N. H., today was sentenced to one year's imprisonment and fined 5000 marks on charges of commercial espionage in seeking to obtain German chemical and dye secrets.

The chemist, who is of German birth, was released on a bail bond of 11,000 marks (about $2600), but must remain in Germany.

Meisel spent eight months in prison awaiting trial. This period will be deducted from the prison sentence.

The trial was held in secret because of fear that secrets of the German dye trust be revealed, particularly the methods used by the trust in avoiding foreign espionage.

The public prosecutor said the chief alleged offenses were committed between 1922 and 1927 through the medium of a German chemist.

Counsel for Meisel acted a milder sentence on the ground that he had not acted with felonious motives.

B. & M. ENGINEERS GET 71-2 P. C. PAY INCREASE

Wage increases of 7½ per cent to locomotive engineers are provided in an agreement between the Boston & Maine railroad and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, which was announced. This is said to complete practically a cycle of pay adjustments as a result of arbitration awards and stipulations which in the last year have affected more than 18,000 Boston & Maine employes and added $2,124,320 to the railroad's payroll.

The wage increases averaged 5.35 per cent.

The engineers' increase affects more than 900 men and adds more than $160,000 to the roll.

The previous increases have affected the following classes of employes: conductors and trainmen, signalmen, mechanics and helpers, stationary engineers and firemen, bridge and building workers, locomotive firemen and hostlers, clerks and station service employes, baggagemen, crossing and drawbridge tenders, supervisors, dining car stewards, section and truck foremen and assistants.

AIRPLANE BLOWN UP BY BOMB; DROPS IN STREET; 2 KILLED; MANY HURT

Macon, Ga., Feb. 18 (AP)—Its pilot killed in midair by the premature explosion of an aerial bomb, an airplane, flying in the Southeastern Air Derby here, crashed down into Cherry st., main business thoroughfare, today, killing the other occupant, seriously injuring four pedestrians and inflicting slight hurts to a score or more.

The dead are Buck Steele, veteran aviman, stunt performer and instructor at a Macon flying field, who was at the controls, and Francis Asheraft of Towanda, Pa., brother of another instructor here. Steele's home was in Shreveport, La.

The aviators were tossing out the bombs as a part of the air carnival from an altitude of about 7,000 feet. One of the missiles appeared to have struck a wing of the plane and exploded prematurely, instantly killing Steele, who was manipulating

HUB GIRL IN 'MYSTERY FALL' IN R. I. HOTEL

A young woman believed to be Rosalie Greene of Blue Hill ave., Dorchester, was probably fatally injured today when she fell or jumped from the third floor fire escape of the Central hotel in Providence.

The young woman was taken to the Rhode Island hospital in an unconscious condition, where she was found to be suffering from internal injuries and her name was placed on the danger list.

She had registered yesterday at the hotel under the name of May Parker, Boston, and although without any baggage, was well dressed and apparently prosperous.

She did not have her room this

HOME BREW SAFE FROM INDISCRIMINATE RAIDS

Washington, Feb. 18 (NSB)—Prohibition authorities have no intention of invading private homes or starting a war against home brewers and wine makers, it was explained at the Treasury today, following announcement by Assistant Secretary Seymour Lowman that dry raids can legally be made without search warrants under internal revenue laws.

Lowman's statement gave rise to the report that the Government planned abandoning the use of search warrants and intended to make dry raids indiscriminately on mere suspicion of law violations.

The new system will be applied only to commercial bootleggers, distributing night clubs and speakeasies. It is the opinion of legal advisors to the prohibition office that raids on these establishments do not necessitate search warrants.

STORM CHECKS CHAMBERLIN PLANE DOWN

Trenton, N. J., Feb. 18 (AP)—Clarence D. Chamberlin, who took off from Curtiss Field, New York, at 7:30 a. m. for Macon, Ga., was forced down today at the flying field of the Keystone Aircraft Co. at Bristol. Edgar N. Gott, president of the company, said poor visibility, due to the storm, and the fact that snow and ice got into the carburetor caused the airman to land.

LINER AND BARGE CRASH IN NEW YORK HARBOR

New York, Feb. 18 (AP)—The Ward Line passenger steamer Saluda, with 202 passengers, outward bound for Cuba, collided with the coal barge Seneca in the lower harbor today. The crew of the barge was rescued by the Saluda, which then started back to port.

EIGHT MISSING AFTER SWAMPING OF FERRY

San Francisco, Feb. 18 (AP)—At least eight persons were missing today when police and rescuers checked their reports in an effort to learn the number of casualties in the accident to the ferryboat Peralta, from whose decks an unknown number of passengers were swept into San Francisco Bay.

Incomplete figures showed that eight persons believed to have been on the boat last night when the passenger yards seeking jobs shoveling snow. A number of those looking for employment aroused Acting Mayor Thomas H. Green from a peaceful slumber in his Charlestown home.

As the storm continued, Street Comr. J. H. Sullivan said he would probably call on the city contractors for aid, which will mean an additional force of 500 men and 150 trucks.

The force of city employes early in the traffic area included workers attached to the sanitary, street cleaning, sewer and paving departments.

As early as was Commissioner Sullivan in ordering out his men, William J. Long, park commissioner, beat him by several hours.

At 4 a. m. Long had 300 men, ten plows and eight tractors moving through the Fens, Franklin Park and the Jamaicaway.

Slush beneath the snow—a result of last night's rain—made automobile driving perilous and there was much skidding and a few accidents. The sticky oil caused electric switches with consequent delay in trolley movement and the railroads experiencing minute delays ran plows on regular schedule.

SHIPS SNOWBOUND

As threatening as was the storm on shore, it was infinitely worse outside, in Boston harbor and along the New England coast from Eastport, Me., to New York.

Ships of all sizes were held at their piers, the departure for Newport of the new airplane carrier U. S. S. Lexington being temporarily abandoned.

The Lexington, due to leave North Approach pier, South Boston, at an early hour on her run to Newport, where her commander will be called to, did not move a propeller and would not sail until the storm was over, her commander declared.

Visibility at sea was virtually nil, a light fog, and add to the swirling snow, this holds minimum portent for careless craft. A score of fishing schooners and small steamers poked their way into Boston harbor herbor to escape the dangers outside.

The mid-western blizzard resulted in two known deaths in Chicago and several injured, and the depth of snow ranged in different states from six inches to more than a foot and a half.

Snow is general throughout the country from Alabama to Canada and as far west as Missouri. In the Ohio valley, the Lake region and the Mississippi valley the cold wave accompanying the storm has caused drops in temperature varying from 10 to 20 degrees. Duluth, Minn., had a minimum of 12 degrees below zero.

Over northern Montana and gathering its forces for a swift march eastward is another storm threat, which is expected to hit New England, perhaps by Sunday night, and chase the brief cold spell out to sea. It is quite probable this storm area will result in another snowfall here.

Portland in Grip of Most Severe Blizzard of Winter

Portland, Me., Feb. 17 (AP)—Trailing in the wake of a storm that is brinding the heaviest fall of snow here this Winter, severe cold will grip Portland tonight and Sunday. Weather bureau officials predicted 10 degrees tonight.

convinced they are dead. Their home was in Hagerville.

The cause of the blast is not known.

The shanty containing the dynamite was about 150 feet to the rear of the Moore and Thompson paper mill. All windows in the mill and many in the Hudson Bag Co.'s mill were smashed and several employes were cut. Several men rendered as a night shift by the construction company and who were asleep in the bunk house 200 feet away were slightly injured.

Fourteen large windows in the municipal building were blown out and most of the windows in Hotel Windham were smashed.

laden prow dipped into the bay, today had failed to return to their homes.

Six persons originally reported missing returned to their homes during the night. Search of the bay Estimates of passengers were that from 20 to 100 persons were plunged overboard. The official list showed 67 had been rescued.

What caused submerging of the forward part of the boat as she sped toward Oakland with a heavy load of commuters during the evening rush hour likewise remained undetermined.

The big, electric-driven ferry, operating between San Francisco and Oakland for the key route transit system, was nearing its East Bay destination during the rush hour last night when the accident occurred.

Suddenly the ferry lurched downward and the scores of passengers in the bow found themselves submerged in the cold salt water.

Women knelt on the decks and prayed while the men attacked lockers filled with life preservers. The air was filled with the cries of those struggling in the water and the screams of women and children on the decks.

Flapper Rum Runners Hunted on Border

Washington, Feb. 18 (INS)—The flapper rum-runner is the latest variety of prohibition law violator that has been called to the attention of the federal dry force.

Reports today showed that a considerable number of young women, short-skirted, bobbed-haired and wearing fur coats, are smuggling liquor into the country along the Canadian border. They are employed by smugglers on a commission basis, furnished with high power automobiles and so far have been fairly successful in eluding the border patrol. The practice is said to be most prevalent in the Detroit sector.

The Treasury has a force of 450 border patrolmen along the Canadian line. The patrol is motorized with about 300 cars, most of which were captured from smugglers.

MAINE MAN AMONG 15 DEAD IN TANKER BLAST

Tokyo, Feb. 17 (AP)—After a hazardous passage in lifeboats over a sea spread with blazing oil, 21 members of the crew of the American tank steamer Chuky were safe in Yokohama today. The ship exploded Wednesday about a hundred miles southeast of Cape Noshima, while en route from San Pedro, Cal., to Yokohama. The captain and 14 others were either killed or drowned. B. Rosman of Portland, Me., is listed among the dead. S. J. Dreyfus of New London, Ct., was listed as rescued.

morning, and hotel employes heard nothing from her until her crushed body was picked up on the ground.

A search of the young woman's room revealed $1.20 in money, and two untouched vials of poison, according to the police.

At the hospital the girl recovered consciousness enough to give a Blue Hill avenue, Dorchester, address, which was found to be the home of the family of Jacob Greene. A Boston Evening American reporter was informed at the house that a daughter, Rosela Green, 24 years old, had left home yesterday and had not been heard from since. She was said to have been despondent and in a highly nervous condition. She gave no indication as to where she was going.

Fearful that the injured girl was their sister, Dora Green and her brother, Abraham, left for Providence.

The missing girl was described as being five feet three inches tall, 115 pounds in weight, wearing a raccoon coat, green hat, plaid dress and black shoes. She had dark hair and brown eyes.

In an address before a luncheon of the Leonard Wood Memorial Association, Gen. Summerall announced that Secretary of War Davis has authorized changing the name of Camp Meade, Maryland, to "Fort Leonard Wood."

RICH OHIOAN IS SUICIDE IN NEW YORK, POLICE SAY

New York, Feb. 18 (INS)—Convinced that Robert Livingston Ireland, Cleveland financier, who married a niece of the late Mark Hanna, committed suicide, police today dropped their investigation into his death. No autopsy will be performed. Ireland was found in his room at the Hotel Seymour. Near his heart were five 32-calibre revolver bullets. A sixth was on the floor near the bed on which the body lay. Mrs. Ireland discovered the tragedy. Ireland had been in ill-health for a year.

REVERE TEACHERS' HOPES DASHED ON PAY CHECKS

Hopes of many Revere school teachers were dashed today when informed that the city treasury would be unable to make up the semi-monthly pay checks for Tuesday. The teachers have made plans to go on their midwinter vacation next week. Thursday is the regular pay day.

The teachers will work Monday and Tuesday because of loss of work last Fall when the schools were closed because of lack or heat.

BUCKLEY PINS HOPES ON 'MAP TECHNICALITY'

Joseph Foster Buckley of Weston, on trial for murder, may win his freedom on a technical issue even if the evidence presented in Middlesex Superior Court at East Cambridge be considered proof of guilt. The earnestness with which the defense, armed with surprise testimony, is endeavoring to show that the crime—if there was one—was committed in Southboro, Worcester County, indicates that great weight will be placed on this matter when Atty. George D. Ellsworth makes his final argument for Buckley's life.

Buckley is under indictment in Middlesex County, although Dist. Atty. Bushnell has made it plain that the Government does not know just where the shooting of Grace Mills, Waltham girl, took place.

Should Buckley be found not guilty, whether on the evidence or on a technicality, he cannot be tried again in any county for the death of the girl.

This feature of the trial is only one of several that stamp it as unusual, attracting huge crowds to the courthouse. Buckley, his appearance o nthe witness stand twice postponed, will testify Monday in his own behalf.

FIVE KILLED IN PLANE CRASHES

Minus a guiding hand at the controls, the craft went into a tail spin while hundreds of persons in Cherry st. looked on in horror.

Warning shouts failed to clear the thoroughfare entirely, one man being grazed by a wing of the plane just as it hurtled to the street. Several others were struck by wreckage hurled through the air at the impact.

There was no explosion in the airplane's gasoline tank when it crashed, leading to the belief that the bomb may have set off the fuel in midair.

SIDEWALK COLLAPSES

Part of the sidewalk collapsed under the impact of the crash and a dozen or more onlookers fell into the cellar of a store. Many of the pedestrians received their injuries there.

The man most seriously injured suffered a wrenched leg and arm.

At the hospital, to which all the injured were taken, it was learned that two unidentified men and a negro woman also were struck by parts of the falling plane and immediate operations were ordered.

2 Girls Burned to Death in Airplane Wreckage

Columbia, S. C., Feb. 18 (AP)—Two young Columbia girls were burned to death when the crash of an airplane in which they were passengers crashed at the edge of the city. The pilot escaped.

The girls were a Miss Holt and a Miss Rogers, each about 17 years old.

Don Dieget of Chesaw, S. C., the pilot, was taken to a hospital after he had managed to extricate himself from the burning wreckage.

A heavy wind was blowing and the pilot and Dr. G. A. Punch, who was at the field with the girls, endeavored to persuade them not to go up. They insisted, it was said, and the plane took off. A heavy gust of wind blew it against a floodlight tower.

The plane burst into flames as it struck the ground. The girls were caught in the wreckage.

LIQUOR IGNITES AT TABLE, SHE DECLARES

One of the strangest suits ever filed in Suffolk County today named John J. Moore, Hub business man, defendant in an action to recover damages for an alleged breach of contract to pay Nora M. Watson $10,000 in installments $25 a week and provide her for life with an apartment free of rent. Miss Watson brought the suit.

The contract, she claims, was arranged in consideration of her not bringing suit against him for burns she suffered when his guest at a theater ticket in 1923.

The plaintiff says that on February 14, 1923, after dining with the defendant, he upset certain alcoholic and spirituous liquors which became ignited and burned her so she was unable to do the work she previously had been doing.

On her agreement not to sue him, Miss Watson claims Moore promised to find employment for her as long as she was able to work, pay her $25 a week and provide an apartment, and in addition give her $10,000 in securities of the Hingham, Scituate and Cohasset Water companies, the Milbrook Trust Company and the Liberty Trust Company.

Although she never received the securities, she claims that Moore gave her $25 a week, procured unfurnished for her and furnished an apartment, free of rent, until last June, when he refused to do any more for her.

The Liberty Trust Company, the Hingham Trust Company, the Everett Trust Company and G. W. Stetson & Co., Inc., which are supposed to hold funds belonging to Moore, are named as trustees in the writ. A deputy sheriff attempted to make service on Moore, reported he could not find him.

GOODWIN HAILS FOUR BILLS ON TRAFFIC LIGHTS

Answering critics, Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today declared that the fact that there are now four bills before the Legislature to remedy the defect in the law proves that the signal light system of traffic control is illegal.

This was his reply to police officials of Worcester, Brockton and Lawrence, who asserted they would enforce obedience to the "stop" and "go" signs, regardless of the registrar's announcement that the right of way law alone should govern motorists.

Registrar Goodwin now makes it clear that his statement regarding illegality was made with a view to stimulating public interest in the matter prior to legislative hearings on the question on February 23 at the State House.

"There is only one way to remedy a bad situation and that is to let the public know about it," he said. "It is to be hoped every motorist will continue to obey the stop and go signals. But if he does not, he at least is compelled to obey other laws, such as the requirement to slow down upon approaching an intersection and come to a stop if necessary to avoid collision."

'6 LITTLE FOYS' BRING EDDIE HOME TODAY

New York, Feb. 18 (INS)—Stage folk say the greatest comedian is at heart the greatest tragedian—if so, Broadway should weep freely today when Eddie Foy comes home.

Eddie, who reigned on the American stage for years and years as the greatest clown of them all, returns in death to be laid at rest not so far from the lights of the Great White Way—at New Rochelle.

Accompanied by Mrs. Foy and six of "The Seven Little Foys," the actor's body was scheduled to arrive at Pennsylvania station, and crossing Broadway will be transferred through the Grand Central to a New Rochelle train.

It will lie among his old neighbors at the Foyer, Eddie's residence. Funeral mass for the actor, who died Thursday in Kansas City, may not be sung before Tuesday.

Bryan Foy, "the seventh little Foy," is expected to arrive Monday from Hollywood, where he is a director and scenario writer. Father Pasquale Metrulli, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, New Rochelle, and a personal friend of the deceased, probably will conduct the last rites.

The Lambs, Friars and Players' Clubs, the Catholic Actors' Guild, the National Vaudeville Association and the Elks plan ceremonies at the grave.

GIVE NEW CLUE TO SMITH GIRL

Chico, Cal., Feb. 18 (INS)—The search for Frances St. John Smith, New York heiress and Smith College student, who vanished January 15, turned with startling abruptness to Chico today.

Three men, who observed a girl at the Southern Pacific station here, declared she answered the description of the missing student.

The girl, they said, seemed upset when she noticed a newspaper photograph of Mrs. St. John Smith, mother of the missing student, and bought a ticket for Sacramento in an electric car station.

She had alighted from a Southern Pacific train and idled about, telling attendants she was waiting for her husband, "C. N. Lee."

Sacramento, Feb. 18 (INS)—A check of hotels here failed to disclose a trace of Francis St. John Smith, reported in Chico to have bought a ticket [illegible] ento.

BEAUTIFY RIVER BASIN, IS PLEA

Legislative action for a Charles River Basin rivaling in beauty similar bodies of water abroad, with boathouses and bathing beaches for the public, was sought today by a number of Boston's most prominent citizens.

An investigation by the Metropolitan District Commission and the department of health, or by a special commission, with a view of making the basin more sanitary and more useful, was requested in a pamphlet addressed to every member of the Legislature.

The group behind the movements consists of James W. Rollins, James J. Phelan, Andrew J. Peters, Edward A. Filene, Joseph Lee, Hugh Bancroft, Herbert Parsons, George Owen, Philip Rubenstein, Edward C. Storrow, L. Tucker Burr, Jr., Harry J. Carlson, John Richardson, Arthur D. Chapin, Francis L. Higginson, Arthur W. Stevens, Edgar Wrightington and N. Penrose Hallowell.

3 MORE BATTLE HOOVER IN OHIO

Columbus, O., Feb. 18 (AP)—Three more presidential candidates were brought into the Ohio race tonight. Senator Frank B. Willis, opponent of Herbert Hoover in contest of the state's delegates, announced.

Former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, whose Charles Evans Hughes boom was officially launched in Ohio last night, and James Watson of Indiana, were also declared Willis candidates for delegates to party convention in June, Willis headquarters announced. Petitions, it was said, already have been received, it was stated.

CHICAGO JUDGE ONE OF TWO TARGETS FOR BOMBS

Chicago, Feb. 18 (AP)—Explosive bombs, aimed for three, were tossed into two buildings in widely separated parts of the city during the night.

The home and underground establishment of Municipal Judge John A. Sbarbaro was bombed almost at the same time a blast tore away part of the Century garage.

KRESGE'S WIFE GETS DIVORCE

Reno, Feb. 18 (AP)—Mrs. Jessie Meyer Kresge was granted today an interlocutory decree of divorce from Sebastian S. Kresge, Detroit millionaire.

The decree was given in the State court here based on a jury verdict, returned recently finding Kresge guilty of improper conduct with Mrs. Hazel Adams Webb, of Reno. The decree will be made final in three months.

HENRY S. FITZGERALD AND WIFE 25 YEARS MARRIED

Friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Fitzgerald will gather at their home, 61 Lendall st., Jamaica Plain, to help them celebrate their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Fitzgerald is a member of ex-Mayor Curley's staff and is a [illegible] administration. Among those present will be the five children of Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald, the Misses Frances, Rose Mary, John T. and Edward.

B. NASON HAMLIN PLANS INTERESTING TRIP ABROAD, SAYS BETTY ALDEN

Crowds Wealth of Incident Into the Few Weeks He Will Spend in British Isles

WHEN B. NASON HAMLIN SETS HIMSELF DOWN TO PLAN a spring jaunt abroad, he works magic. His coming journey to England and Ireland is a marvel, the most interesting I've heard about. And into his few weeks abroad he has dovetailed with nicety just exactly the diversions and events that most appeal to him. Hunting, for instance; and fishing; and being on hand for the Grand National Steeplechase at Liverpool on March 29. No true-blue gentleman sportsman of Mr. Hamlin's caliber could be within 1000 miles of Aintree on that historic date and not make strenuous efforts to see the running. Into Mr. Hamlin's schedule it fits with perfection.

FINANCIERS JUGGLE IMPORTANT BUSINESS DATES TO BE AT Aintree when the field, or what's left of it, comes thundering home. Imposing dowagers desert the fashionable round to be on hand to rub elbows with royalties and near royalties. The Grand National is "the" event of the sporting world, next after the Derby. And for good measure, to give the crowds a thrill of another sort, on the day immediately after the Grand National, Oxford and Cambridge stage their historic rowing contest. After Mr. Hamlin has taken in all these stupendous events he goes to London for a week, and so home, sailing on April 7.

IN IRELAND HE PROPOSES TO INDULGE IN THE BEST IRELAND has to offer in the way of sports. He will hunt with some of the famous packs in the famous old hunting county of Meath. And when not out after the wily fox he will turn his attention to the wily trout, or whatever spotted finny beauty it is that abounds in the River Boyne. And having a delicate hand for both the bridle and the rod, his success at both hunting and fishing will be eminently satisfying. Already Mr. Hamlin has engaged rooms at the Adelphi Hotel at Liverpool. And as everyone who keeps in touch with sporting events knows, the Adelphi at Liverpool is a gay spot, the very heart of things on the eve of the big steeplechase.

ONCE BACK IN TOWN AND MR. HAMLIN TURNS HIS TALENTS and his unbounded enthusiasm to polo. To him, in great measure, is due the revival of interest in polo hereabouts. He and the other "veterans" (as they call themselves) like J. Dudley Clark, William Cameron Forbes and Hallam Movius put in some strenuous afternoons, about three a week, at the Dedham Country and Polo Club at this stirring game. Due to Mr. Forbes's matchless generosity and the enormous stables he maintains, the "one-pony" man who dotes on polo but hasn't a string of his own is enabled to indulge his taste in that very spirited pastime. Polo commences May 5 and continues practically all spring.

"AE" IS SOON COMING TO TOWN. AND TO TRANSLATE "AE" so that he who runs may read, George W. Russell, famous poet and leader in the renaissance of Ireland's literature comes to town March 4, to speak at the Repertory theater, and o be generally feted as a distinguished poet and literary figure should be. He arrives on the 3d of March, puts up at the Union Club, and makes his sole Boston appearance at the Repertory Theater.

MRS. FISKE WARREN, IN WHOSE SIGHT ERUDITION IS more praiseworthy than mere social prominence, is sending out the patroness notes. And Leighton Rollins, arranger of unusual and interesting occasions, is doing those thousand and one details such a momentous arrival makes necessary. Mr. Russell's passage across our great and glorious country is, like that of so many other foreigners of note, a progress from one lecture platform to another. Seasoned everywhere with brilliant functions—they gave an enormous dinner for him in New York, beside other lesser, but no less enjoyable affairs.

TO DANCE IN ARISTOCRATIC DRAWINGROOMS, AFTER HAVING dined in magnificent dinning rooms, is a pleasure the younger dancing set is wont to view in a while indulged in. Last evening, at her beautiful home in Commonwealth ave., Miss Ruth Baylies gave a dinner and a dance for Miss Stella Mary Gray. Miss Gray is a bud in this season's debutante garden. Miss Bayliss is the sophisticated older girl, with a season or two to her credit. And since parties of this sort are more or less frequent occurrences in the Bayliss social scheme, and since the Bayliss home is perfectly planned for formal entertainment, and since only the choice sprigs of the younger set were bidden, the party shone resplendent.

LAST EVENING, FOR HER PARTY, MISS STELLA MARY GRAY wore a lovely robe de style of gold. Its closely molded bodice and the round sweep of its skirt are of gleaming metal cloth, touched with a mellow yellow brown, and beneath the hem peeped gold shoes as she danced. Miss Helga Gray's dance costume was also in the picture mode, a crisp and softly shining taffeta, ranging from white to soft gray and so into deep gray. Mrs. Gray wore green crepe of two tones.

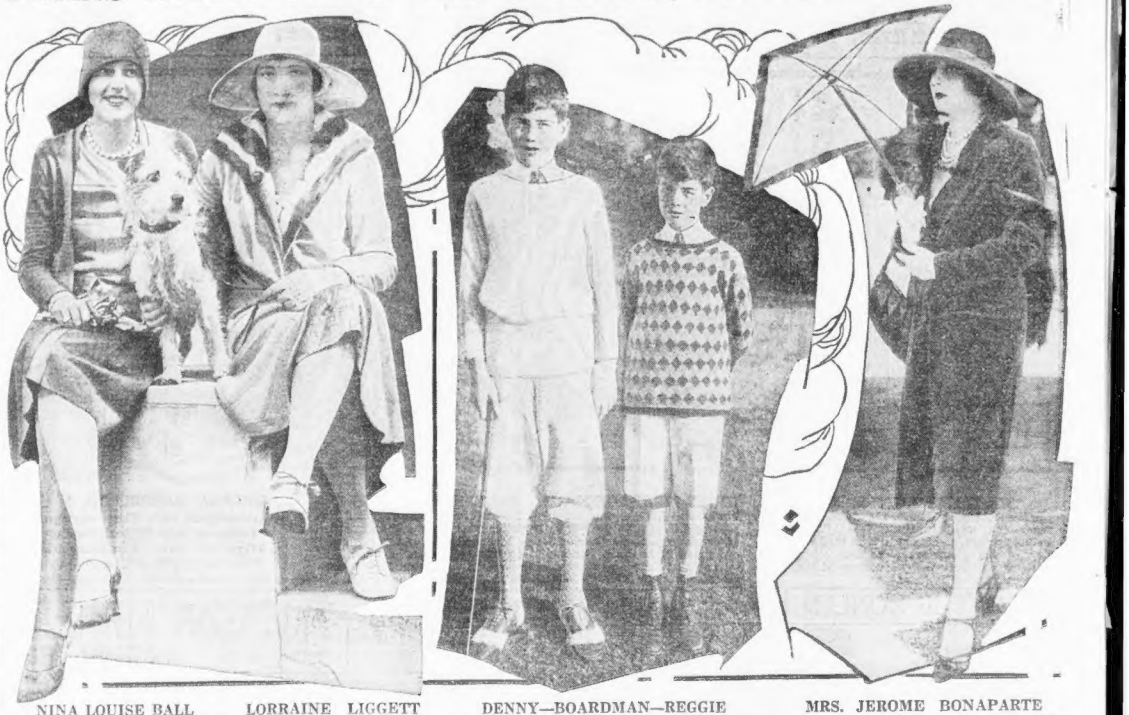
WHILE DINNER WENT ON AT THE BAYLIES' HOME, ANOTHER dinner, with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Gray as hosts, took place at the Hotel Somerset. Mr. Gray is His Britannic Majesty's representative hereabouts, the popular and ever gracious British consul general. But what man would not show to officialdom backed as Mr. Gray is by three charming feminine figures in his family. Mrs. Gray, petite of figure and shorn of head, is every whit as girlish and as popular as the two delightful daughters, Miss Helga Gray and Miss Mary Stella Gray, the debutante aforementioned.

SPURRED TO FEVERISH ENDEAVOR TO CREATE THE "MOST original" costumes, Copley Society's Mardi Gras guests have as reward three very special prizes. Shrove Tuesday is set for the society's costume ball, and with Holker Abbott at the head of a special committee to award the prizes you may be sure judgment will be keen and most discriminating. The prizes are not the tawdry things sometimes thus designated. Each is indeed a gem, worthy to become the heirloom of a future generation.

ONE OF LAURA HILL'S BEAUTIFUL FLOWER PASTELS IS A prize. Another is a stained glass medalion, done by that master of the art, Charles J. Connick. And thirdly, Cyrus Dallin donates a miniature replica of his famous "Appeal to the Great Spirit." If these are not sufficient to bring ingenuity and versatility at costuming into play, pray what would? Some special features of the evening will be Langdon Mitchell, doing a Siamese dance; Robert Cass to fence with an oppenent, and two professional dancers from New York. The Copley Society's Mardi Gras party at Repertory Hall will serve to carry over into the penitential season many a spirited memory.

ONE DEBUTANTE AFFAIR OF MORE THAN ORDINARY interest has been crossed off the late winter schedule. The very lovely Mrs. Archie Mains, of Commonwealth ave., was to have given a ball last evening at the Hotel Ritz-Carleton for a very lovely debutante, Miss Lilias Morfarti. Mrs. Mains is beautiful in the raven-tressed, dark-eyed way, slender and chic, and always faultlessly dressed. Miss Morfarti is pretty in the fluffy golden-haired, blue-eyed manner, and she and Mrs. Mains would have been delightful contrasts in the receiving line. However, since the party does not come off until later, to see them so will be but a treat deferred.

THE HARVARD FLYING CLUB RALLIES TO A MAN AT MRS. EDWARD L. BIGELOW'S call for usher duty on Thursday evening at the Hotel Statler. Naturally, these embryo birdmen consider it an honor to usher, since Commander Richard Byrd is the speaker of the evening. Some day, in the not distant future, these young men may be emulating the Byrd achievements—and search out a new world to fly over. Since it is probable by that time every known portion of the earth will have been flown over, charted, inspected and properly ticketed,



NINA LOUISE BALL LORRAINE LIGGETT DENNY—BOARDMAN—REGGIE MRS. JEROME BONAPARTE

Miss Ball, who hails from Philadelphia, and her pet "Dude" are inseparable at Palm Beach. Miss Liggett and the Boardman boys are of the Boston colony which puts in the winters at the American Riviera. Mrs. Bonaparte is widely known in New York and Newport.

COMMANDER BYRD, HAVING SKIMMED THE ATLANTIC AND looked down on the North Pole, as it were, next flies to the Antarctic, where this intrepid aviator-explorer intends to set up a tiny city on the very rim of the "bleak Antartic continent," as a base for his South Polar flight. He leaves civilization some time next autumn. And Thursday's lecture, to benefit the Lying-In Hospital, is, as every retiring star and famous diva has it, "positively a final appearance" William D. Sohier does the honors, introducing Commander Byrd.

IF EVERY GILT CHAIR IN THE ENORMOUS BALLROOM OF THE Hotel Statler, on Thursday evening, is not occupied by a Boston social light, then may it be believed that Mesdames Thomas Gaffett, Henry Forbes Bigelow, Horace Morison, and others of the Board of Lady Visitors are neophytes at arranging successful benefits. Such is a thought unthinkable, however. Each and every one of them have had, oftimes, a dainty hand guiding the financial fortunes of this and that organization, so that they are now letter perfect at the game of pleasantly detaching dollars from their possessors to the betterment of certain philauthropical strong boxes.

shrapnel split his head while he drove a war ambulance.

Buck Hoover and the Pacific at night make outside news seem trivial. But it must be mentioned.

American nations at Havana agree to "outlaw aggressive war on these American continents." What "is" aggressive war? The other nation's "war," of course. No modern nation ever fought without calling it "self defense."

The Prince of Wales shakes hands, by mistake, with a waiter, best dressed man probably at a business men's dinner.

"But, sir, I'm only a waiter."

"I don't see that makes any difference," says the prince, shaking hands over again.

The tyrant was annoyed when Solon told him there could be good government "only when kings become philosophers, or philosophers become kings." The young prince leaves philosophy to professors. But he knows that royalties achieve permanency by becoming democratic.

Lindbergh returns from his exhausting trip, worn and visibly aged. What he does is Lindbergh's business—even should he decide to continue risks and "stunts" until he kills himself.

But the public hopes he will realize that his value to America does not consist in "stunt" flying.

Napoleon was not ashamed to promise the French people that he would not expose himself to danger, or go too near the front.

At the Bridge of Arcola and elsewhere he had proved his reckless courage and Lindbergh proved his in that ocean flight.

Our lawmakers have about decided that the way to enforce prohibition is to put real and deadly poison in all alcohol sold legally. That sounds more like the Borgias than like your loving Uncle Sam. Why not leave alcohol poisoning to bootleggers? They do it very nicely.

Los Angeles police authorities will fine every policeman that fails to make fewer than three arrests in so many days.

In the good old English days of Henry the Second, under the law of the "Hundreds," somebody had to be responsible for every murder. When a corpse was found within the territory of a certain "Hundred," the hundred good men and true had to produce the murderer or pay heavy fines. They usually produced a murderer. The Los Angeles police will produce their three arrests as ordered.

4 "MERRY" HIT-AND-RUN GIRLS SOUGHT IN REVERE

The Revere police were today seeking four girls, occupants of an automobile which struck the car operated by Samuel Honey of Verona st., Lynn, on Broadway, Revere, at Fernwood ave., and then dashed away without halting while the girls laughed merrily. Honey was shaken up and bruised, while his machine was badly damaged. He obtained three numerals of their registration number which he turned over to Patrolman Harry L. McKinley.

LAST RITES FOR MISS BERTHE BRAGGIOTTI

In a beautiful setting of snow-clad trees, singularly appropriate for the funeral for an artist, the body of Berthe Braggiotti today started on its long journey toward sunny Florence, Italy, where final burial will take place.

From the mansion on the Braggiotti estate on Upland rd., Brookline, the casket bearing the remains of the famous young dancer was borne to St. Paul's Church, Asplinwall ave, and St. Paul st.

Following funeral services, which were attended by persons of prominence in all walks of life, especially society and the stage, the body was taken to Forest Hills cemetery for temporary interment in the receiving vault. Eventually it will lie beside the remains of the dancer's mother in Florence.

Flowers telegraphed from all over America and Europe continued to arrive at the house right up to the funeral hour.

The favorite hymn of the deceased, "Abide With Me," was sung by the church choir during the service which were conducted by Rev. W. L. Clerk, the rector. The ushers were John Lodge, Augustus Dory, William Gaston, Gifford Pinchot, Powell Codman, Jr., J. W. Ward, Edward Briggs and Louis A. Shaw.

WOMAN HITS BOY, DRIVES AUTO INTO STORE WINDOW

An automobile operated by Miss Helen Blair, 23, who was "learning to drive," climbed the sidewalk at Austin and Summer sts., Lynn, today, struck Joseph Rooney, 12, of 11 Dell st., and plunged through the window of a vacant store. Neither Miss Blair nor Pierce Garrett, who was teaching the girl to drive, were injured. The boy was taken to Lynn hospital for observation.

YOUNG FILM STAR VICTIM OF MYSTERIOUS SCALDING

Initiates in Jail Garb Cause Scare in Hyde Park

Six figures draped in convict garb performed weird gyrations in Hyde Park at dawn today and sent several early morning pedestrians scurrying through the snow to Station 19 with reports that escaped prisoners were making a getaway in the storm.

A detail of patrolmen rushed to the scene and interrupted a novel initiation program. The smoke-man of the candidates said the group had applied for membership in a Boston financial organization. Acting hastily on the suggestion of a sergeant in charge of the detail the merrymakers jumped into an automobile and sped away.

Patrick McDonough, 14, of D street, South Boston, convicted of setting fire to the parochial school of SS. Peter and Paul's Church, South Boston, was sent to the Lyman school for an indefinite period when he appeared in South Boston court today. On a charge of setting a fire in his own home he was held in $1000 for the grand jury.

Frank Femiano, 7, of K st., South Boston, convicted in South Boston Juvenile Court of breaking and entering in the daytime with intent to commit larceny and setting fire to the South Baptist Church on Fourth st., South Boston, was placed on six months' probation and turned over to the Children's Aid Society.

2 ARRESTED, DOPE SEIZED, IN RICH NEW YORK ROOMS

New York, Feb. 18 (INS)—Forcing their way into a luxuriously furnished apartment in a fashionable district here, federal narcotic agents today arrested a woman who said she was Gladys Curran, formerly of Providence, R. I., and a man who said he was her husband, on charges of possessing "dope." The agents charged that they found two sets of "dope" outfits and opium valued at $500. The agents also said they found a book containing names and addresses of prominent persons who are thought to have been furnished drugs by the Curran.

COUZENS BALKS AT 'CIRCUS' IN COAL PROBE

Washington, Feb. 18 (AP)—Senator Gedding of Idaho is to head the Senate sub-committee which will go into the Pennsylvania coal district for a first-hand picture before the investigation into conditions in the central bituminous field is put under way.

Chairman Watson of the Interstate Commerce Committee announced today that the other members of the sub-committee would be Senators Couzens of Michigan and Metcalf of Rhode Island. Oddie, Reed and Wheeler of Montana and Wagner of New York, Democrats.

Senator Couzens protested against his appointment.

"I think that is a hippodrome and I refuse to participate," he said.

"It's not a hippodrome at all," retorted Senator Wheeler. "I have found it to be of the utmost help in all the cases I have prosecuted to survey the ground beforehand. It gives you a better understanding of the case."

"I like to verify the evidence after it is in rather than to anticipate it," Couzens said. "I decline to be on the committee."

Chairman Watson moved around the long committee table to where Senator Couzens sat and undertook to change the mind of the Michigan member.

"I'm not going to serve," Couzens said flatly. "I'm not going out on any circus performance. If the others want to do so and have their pictures taken, all right, but I'm not going to."

Watson told Couzens he would use further persuasion on him later, but the Michigan member assured him it would be a wasted effort.

PRES. LOWELL TO SPEAK BEFORE CLUBS IN WEST

President Lowell of Harvard left today to speak before three mid-Western Harvard clubs at their annual dinners during the coming week. On Monday evening he will be the guest of the Harvard Club of St. Louis; on Tuesday evening he will address the Harvard Club of Chicago, and on Wednesday the Harvard Club of Detroit.

LYON SHY ABOUT HIS MARRYING MARILYN

New York, Feb. 18 (INS)—The Twentieth Century Limited pulled into New York today with four shining lights of Hollywood movie colony aboard.

Newspapermen stormed the train, eager to learn from Ben Lyon the correct dope on reported engagement to Marilyn Miller, former wife of Jack Pickford. A handsome young man stepped to the platform.

"I understand you are going to marry Marilyn Miller," reporters said to him.

"I'm in love with my own wife," came the reply.

It was Rod Laroque.

Almost immediately, Lyon appeared. The report of his engagement was repeated.

"Sounds interesting, doesn't it?" he countered. "I'm in New York for a three weeks' vacation. I expect to see a great deal of Miss Miller. But, if there is to be an announcement of an engagement, don't you think it should come from her?"

Next to appear were Irving Thalberg, director, and his bride, the former Norma Shearer. They plan to sail on the Mauretania for Europe.

NOTED AIRMEN WANT LINDY TO KEEP FLYING

SHOULD Lindy quit flying? A veritable avalanche of opinions on this topic of the day has descended on the Boston Evening American since Secretary of War Davis advised the flying colonel to give up long non-stop flights.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's characteristic reply -- that he would keep on flying if it killed him--is receiving a lot of support. A great many agree with Secretary Davis, however, and not a few feel that the world hero should quit the air entirely.

The Boston Evening American is trying to find out what is the sentiment of a majority of its readers. Send in your vote, marked on the printed ballot elsewhere, in this paper. All the votes will be sent to Lindy.

Following are some of many opinions voiced:

COMDR. RICHARD E. BYRD, who flew over the North Pole, and also across the Atlantic ocean—Lindy knows what he is doing. I wouldn't undertake to tell him what to do. Whether flying is safe depends on who is doing the flying. Flying can be safe.

COL. WILLIAM MITCHELL, former assistant chief of the U. S. Army Air Service—Col. Lindbergh should NOT be interfered with in anything he deems just to do. His success has been entirely due to his own efforts. If the administration, the bureaus or even Congress, as at present constituted, should have attempted to tell him what to do, nothing whatever would have been the result.

CAPT. DIEUDONNE COSTES and Lieut. Comdr. Joseph Le Brix, French transatlantic fliers—Why, it would break Lindbergh's heart if he couldn't soar the skies, wherever he picked, in his beloved spirit of St. Louis. He is like any other aviator—he must get up into the air. It's his life work. To stay on the ground, or to have his flying restricted to small hops, would ruin a man of Lindbergh's type. Flying isn't dangerous—at any rate not to the men who know their business.

EDDIE RICKENBACKER, America's "ace" during the World War—I hope that Lindbergh will give up long distance flying.

ASST. U. S. ATTY. JOHN J. WALSH—Lindbergh has displayed such sterling judgment in the accomplishment of his epochal flights that it seems presumptuous to dictate his future activities in aviation. The popular mind should divorce itself from the idea that Lindy alone has attended his successes; rather it should realize that his mastery of aerial navigation has made him the aerial pioneer he is today. Let Lindbergh himself decide what is best for him to do; for the layman stick to his "last."

JOHN M. CASEY, city censor—I think that Col. Lindbergh should be confined to safe flying. He has accomplished what he set to do and proved that commercial air transportation is practical. Should anything happen to him now it would be a terrific blow to aviation. He had done his bit as a pioneer.

CITY CLERK JAMES DONOVAN—I think Col. Lindbergh has done enough for aviation. I am inclined to agree with Secretary of War Davis. The country owes so much to Col. Lindbergh they ought to see that he lives from now on. His loss would be a national calamity.

HORACE CULD, secretary of the Boylston Street Association—Lindbergh's judgment as to what is safe and what is not safe in aviation is second to none. That judgment should not be impeded or controlled by inferior judgments. He should not be dictated to.

HERBERT E. ELLIS, chairman rent and housing commission—I feel the matter of flying should be left entirely to Lindy's own discretion. He has amply proven in the past his ability to "control the air" and his judgment in this regard should be recognized and appreciated.

JOHN B. HYNES, assistant budget commissioner—The experiences of the past show that our great fliers are not immune to accidental fatalities. Any fatality to Col. Lindbergh would be a severe loss to the Nation. For this reason he should confine himself to the education of the public in the commercial development of aviation.

Should Lindy Fly? What Is Your Opinion?

Secretary of War Davis wants Lindy to abandon long non stop flights. Others want him to give up flying entirely. My opinion is that:

1—Lindbergh should give up flying entirely.....

2—Lindbergh should continue to fly, but eliminate long non-stop flights.....

3—Lindbergh should eliminate stunt flying—acrobatics .....

4—Lindbergh should continue flying without any reservations whatever .....

SON WAS SLAIN, CHARGES MRS. S. B. FRENCH

Nice, France, Feb. 18 (INS)—William Barton French, son of a former partner in the J. P. Morgan Co., did not commit suicide, but was killed as an act of revenge by his enemies, his mother, Mrs. Seth Barton French, declared today.

French was found dead in the home of a friend recently at Santa Fe, N. M. He was pronounced a suicide by the police.

Mrs. French is recuperating at her villa at Roca Marineville from a severe illness brought about by her son's death.

"I do not believe William committed suicide," she said. "I think it was an act of revenge by his enemies and the police should do everything possible to find the murderer.

"William was very high-spirited and at times drank to excess. His love affairs, too, for it has caused and is causing the ruin of thousands of young Americans of both sexes.

"When alcohol could be obtained openly the drank less and of good quality. Nowadays they drink what-ever they can get because they think it is smart. The inferior quality of drink now obtained undermines their moral characters."

LINDY HOPS ON MAIL ROUTE

St. Louis, Feb. 18 (AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh left Lambert-St. Louis Field in a monoplane at 10:35 a. m. today for Chicago to inspect the air mail route over which he will carry mail next Monday and Tuesday.

Lindbergh was accompanied by Frank H. Robertson, president of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, which has the air mail contract, and Thomas P. Nelson, a pilot.

He planned stops at Springfield and Peoria, regular air mail stops, and intended to return immediately after lunch at Chicago.

BRITISH TANKER AFIRE; MENACE TO SHIPPING

Liverpool, Eng., Feb. 18 (AP)—A fire menace to the shipping of Liverpool, the British tank steamer Varand was aground at the mouth of the Mersey today.

The captain and crew of the vessel, 41 in all, were taken off in a rescue by a new Brighton lifeboat. The Varand left Norfolk, Va., Friday, January 13, having stopped there for coaling on her maiden voyage from New Orleans.

Al Smith Too Safe on Earth to Fly, Even With Lindy

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 18 (AP)—"No flying for me," was Governor Smith's reply today in a report that he might have an opportunity to take a spin with Col. Charles A. Lindbergh when the transatlantic flier comes to Albany on February 29 for a legislative aviation hearing.

The Governor was informed that such an opportunity might be offered to him if the War Department places a large plane at the colonel's disposal.

"The application will be received and placed on file," said the executive, "but no flying for me. I'll go alone with Colonel Lindbergh on anything but flying—I'll stay with him while he remains on the ground."

SENATE LINES UP FOR MUSCLE SHOALS FIGHT

Washington, Feb. 18 (INS)—A new battle between the great "power trust" lobby and the progressive Democratic - Insurgent coalition loomed in the Senate today in a pending fight over the Norris resolution, providing for government operation of the $100,000,000 muscle shoals project.

The battle was assured when the Republican steering committee gave the Norris plan first place on the Senate's legislative program. The measure will be considered next week and all indications point to its adoption.

The Norris plan, by which the government would operate the project and sell the power at reasonable rates to cities, towns and states, has aroused as much opposition from public utility concerns as did the Walsh resolution, proposing a senatorial investigation of the "power trust."

Whereas the "power trust" lobby was accredited with defeating the Walsh resolution, even the opposition leaders admitted the Norris resolution would be adopted in the Senate.

The lobby's victory over Senator Thomas J. Walsh (D.) of Montana, meanwhile took on the appearance of being a hollow one. The Federal Trade Commission, which was ordered to make the inquiry, announced it would start public hearings next week.

MOTHER ASKS AID IN HUNT FOR SOUTH BOSTON BOY

Nicholas Perroni, 11-year-old boy of West 7th st., South Boston, disappeared from his home Wednesday and his mother today appealed to readers of the Boston Evening American to assist in locating him.

Nicholas Perroni

"He was a good boy and I don't know what happened to him unless he was struck by an automobile," said Mrs. Caroline Perroni, mother of three other younsters besides Nicholas. "He returned from school Wednesday afternoon and left the house to play with some boys."

Glen Ridge, N. J., Feb. 1 8(AP)—Mrs. Louise Jackson, 56, wife of the Rev. F. W. Jackson, a minister of the Presbyterian church, is dead from burns received when she set fire to her clothing after pouring gasoline over them.

When her husband broke into the room in answer to her screams and extinguished the flames by wrapping her in a steamer rug, she was scarred from the waist to the head. She died in Mountainside Hospital. Rev. Mr. Jackson told the police his wife had been depressed for some time.

U. S. WILL NOT DEMAND BAN ON SUBMARINES

Washington, Feb. 18 (INS)—The United States Government has no intention of pressing for abolition of submarines as instruments of war at the meeting of the League of Nations' Preparatory Commission for Disarmament at Geneva next month. This was revealed today in preparations for resumption of the commission's deliberations March 15. Hugh Wilson, minister to Switzerland, will head the American group.

WORLD'S OLDEST CAPTAIN OF STEAMBOAT 98 TODAY

St. Albans, Vt., Feb. 18 (AP)—Capt. Eli B. Rockwell, believed to be the oldest active steamboat captain in the world, quietly celebrates his 98th birthday at the home of relatives here today.

Capt. Rockwell is in good health and hopes to assume command of his Lake Champlain steamer, the Vermont, next summer.

REPORT H. ENA IS PLANNING MARRIAGE

Bucharest, Rumania, Feb. 18 (AP)—Reports were current today that the projected visit of the 19-year-old Princess Ileana to Madrid in March would be to arrange for her marriage. The Infanta Beatrice of Spain is understood to be in charge of the negotiations.

The name of the bridegroom is not known here, but it is rumored Princess Ileana will meet him in Spain when she goes there with her mother, Queen Marie, with whom she toured the United States in 1926.

War Daddy Shoots Girl Dead 'Playing Soldier'

Chicago, Feb. 18 (INS)—Alice Ferwerda, 18, happy and light-hearted, sat playing the piano while her father, Richard, World War veteran, and her two smaller sisters played soldier in their home here. Mrs. Ferwerda smiled from her chair by the window.

Mr. Ferwerda hailed the soldier company; commanded them to take aim and fire. The little girls took the brooms from their shoulder and pointed them at Alice.

But the little girls wanted their father to aim so they could hear the click of his dig rifle. He pressed the trigger. There was a blinding flash. Alice fell forward from the piano stool

"It couldn't have been loaded," stammered the father.

"It's all right—daddy," Alice sighed as he bent over her. Summoning all her strength she threw her arms around him and kissed him. She died in her father's arms.

British Envoy to France

London, Feb. 18 (INS)—Sir William Tyrell, under secretary of state for foreign affairs, has been appointed British ambassador to France, succeeding Lord Crewe.

FLIERS HOP OFF TO MAKE NEW ENDURANCE RECORD

Imperial, Ca., Feb. 18 (INS)—The huge monoplane Albatross took the air at 6:34 a. m. today in an attempt to wrest the world's endurance flight record from Germany. The plane carried Pilots Alvin K. Peterson and Charles F. Rochevilla of the Zenith Aircraft Corporation and Jack Reid of San Diego, navy flier on leave of absence. They expected to land some time Monday with the German aviators' record of 52 hours, 22 minutes and 31 seconds exceeded by several hours.

MUTUAL

LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

OF BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS

as of December 31, 1927

The Company and Its Beginning The Company is mutual, and all its activities and its property are devoted to the insurance interests of the policyholders. It began business in December, 1862, under charter from the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The Company's Total Insurance In Force The Sixty-Fifth Annual Report, as of December 31, 1927, shows insurance in force of over

$2,764,000,000.00

This insurance is held under more than 6,250,000 policies scattered all over the world, but chiefly in the thirty states, reaching from Atlantic to Pacific and from Lakes to Gulf, where the Company does an active business. About twenty per cent of it is in Massachusetts.

The Principal Liability The insurance is backed by a sinking fund prescribed by statute, amounting to $383,689,508.00. This fund is the legal reserve. It must be invested at a rate of interest at least equal to three and one-half per cent. The Company earned 5.24 per cent in 1927. The amount invested during the year was $64,803,456.82.

The Total Liabilities The other reserves carried by the Company on December 31 brought up its definitely allocated liabilities to the total of $415,000,775.15.

They include a reserve of $16,654,587.95 for policyholders' Dividends to be paid or credited in 1928.

The Total Assets and the Surplus To cover these liabilities the Company owned and held on December 31 bonds, mortgages, and other property valued at $451,006,878.49, thus showing a Surplus of Resources amounting to $36,006,103.34. This Surplus is to provide against asset depreciation, epidemic visitation or other emergency.

Payments to Policyholders Payments to policyholders in the year aggregated $48,537,073.69, or an average of $161,790.00 for each working day.

The Year's New Insurance The new insurance paid for in 1927 was $524,797,698.00, the greatest year's record in the Company's history. The policies ranged from less than $100.00 up to $300,000.00.

Business Insurance The larger policies included many taken as business insurance in favor of firms, corporations and other enterprises. In this way not only business but other institutions are protected from financial loss which might be caused by the premature death of their most valuable men or their chief supporters.

This use of Life Insurance is becoming very general.

Estate Protection Insurance Also, there was written a large amount of insurance for estate protection. This provides ready money to cover asset depreciation or to pay estate or inheritance taxes, and so to preserve the estate intact, thus enabling the desires of the testator to be carried out in full.

This has also become one of the useful phases of Life Insurance.

Life Insurance Trusts Through Banks and Trust Companies Life Insurance Companies usually provide in their policies to the limit of their proper powers for the retention, care and payment of the proceeds to the beneficiaries so far as the instructions of the insured can be accepted for performance. But as most life insurance claims are paid in lump sums there is frequent loss by the beneficiaries through poor investment of the monies so received.

Banking and Trust Institutions are very generally supplementing the efforts of Life Companies by acting as trustees and carrying out the purposes of the insured as expressed in the trust instrument. This service is rapidly and deservedly gaining favor because of its practical use and value to beneficiaries in lessening the chance of unwise investment and helping in other details of estate management.

Group Insurance Late in 1924 the Company started to write Group Insurance, and afterward added Salary Deduction and Wholesale plans. These plans involve the co-operation of employers.

The total of such insurances now in force is over $100,000,000.00.

Health Promotion The Company's health welfare program on behalf of policyholders embraced a number of varied activities devoted to the better preservation of health and life, including the distribution of health literature to the extent of over 1,000,000 copies, radio broadcasts and other warnings to automobilists on Carbon Monoxide Poisoning, co-operative activities with public health officers, health lectures through moving pictures, accident prevention campaigns, and visits by trained nurses in cases of sickness and accident, of which more than 400,000 were made during the year, to holders of Weekly Premium Policies.

The Visiting Nurse Service is done in part by the Company's staff and in part by associations devoted to that form of work.

Some time ago a contract for this service in Boston was made with the Community Health Association, well known for its effective work in health promotion, and it is performing this special service to the Company's policyholders, side by side with its work for the general community.

Five Years' Growth During the five years since 1922 the Income of the Company has increased from $69,264,426.00 to $118,598,203.00 or 71%.

The Assets have increased from $268,075,903.00 to $451,006,878.00 or 68%.

The Annual New Insurance has risen

from $250,402,524.00 to $524,797,698.00 or 109%.

The Insurance In Force has increased from $1,668,847,668.00 to $2,764,331,561.00 or 65%.

Home Office Building To handle this increased volume of business and to house the more than 2,000 employees with the equipment and records, an addition to the Home Office Building in Boston has been provided, including an Assembly Hall for necessary meetings of the organization. The Hall will be for rent when not desired for the Company's affairs.

Policyholders' Cost Down to Low Point Coincident with this growth the expense rate has been reduced and the general cost level of policyholders' premiums brought down to the lowest point in the Company's history.

The Lovely Lobbyists!

A large delegation of chorus girls in "Yours Truly," at the Majestic, are all ready—speeches n'everything—to enlist the aid of Leon Errol in a movement for the common weal. They seek his help in their campaign to provide stage door Johnnies with hot coffee during cold spells.

STAGE AND SCREEN

The Skeleton Jiggles

Adele Klaer, character actress with "Grimaldi," at the Hollis, was last seen in New York with "Revelry." Previously she has appeared in attractions ranging from Shakespeare to "Artists and Models." Miss Klaer has been featured in nine prominent roles from Shakespearean repertoire.

NEW DRAMA HOPS LIGHTLY FROM GOOD OLD "DIPLOMACY" TO SHUBERT "GAY PAREE"

IF IS DIPLOMACY that causes a lady to press a fluttering hand to her face when confronted by bad news and an expression gentleman. And it's in "Diplomacy," Sardou's great play, that causes Frances Starr to revive Rollo Peters in this fashion.

GRACE HAMPTON will—as you might say—grace the new production of "Grimaldi" when it is presented Monday evening at the Hollis.

WHEN GREEK MEETS GREEK they exchange such criticisms of Roman politics as would make even a senator blush with confusion—in "The Road-to-Rome" at the Wilbur. Jane Cowl and Joyce Carey are the Tair Athenians.

ALICE BOULDEN cordially invites one and all, each and every, etc., to her coming out party at the Shubert Monday in rat "Gay Paree"

"BE KIND TO ANIMALS" might be the advice of your old friend, Will Hodge, in this bit from "Straight Thru the Door." Here is Paul Jacchia bringing in (in the basket) the poor bird caught by the early worm, or something like that. (Plymouth).

HODGE FATTENING ON R. F. D. DRAMA

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

WHILE there still may be some omissions and many belated returns on the general proposition that William Hodge is America's outstanding playwright—or even its most spiritual professor of acting—there are indubitable and candid signs along the drama's stormy path which point knowing fingers toward that gentleman. Mr. Hodge may be on Mount in the gentlemen from whom he wrings an honest and gorgeous living, but when you take heed of the distinguished judges who pass sentence upon delinquent Thespians and angling dramatists, you know, at least, that he moves deliberately into the sacred fields of the prophets.

FOR many seasons the theatre has had its chief mourners. Anguished managers have sobbed bitter tears over its decline. There isn't a dry shirt between Forty-second st. and Columbus Circle, for the "road" is dead—passed out, wrapped up and stuffed into its favorite mausoleum. Whatever might be the worst has happened; there is no call for good plays in Kalamazoo, Penn Yan and Yazoo City. If ever in the gay nineties you were a good one-night stand manager those towns would mean good business, good profits and, probably, tragic caterwauling. Anyway, the business carried smiles and profits.

WHATEVER these remarks may have in common with Mr. Will Hodge, one newer two-gun toter and exemplar of the finer arts, there is much that is correlative between the simplicity of Mr. Hodge's own homespun drama and the anxious humanities of far distant excursions. Although Mr. Hodge, undoubtedly, would consider the possibility of Santa Claus with some incredulity, he still is willing to insert a demurrer upon the loudly touted demise of the "road"—the one-night stands.

FRANKLY and openly, our most opulent actor-manager knows that Broadway will have its own drama, but hopes the one-nighter—the "article"—may be left to him. Take it as you will, Hodge is not befuddled with the glitter of electric bulbs on Broadway. He is positive there is a "road" for any good manager or any good actor who is willing to carry the real article instead of shoddy into up-State and down-State towns. He has often proved his own case by first embracing the terrifying road before sweeping into Broadway. The results of those peregrinations have established his own wisdom in theatrical temper. As an example, Johnstown, Pa., famed for flood and concentrated disorder, yielded $2300 on a single performance; Clarksburg, Va., particularly reluctant when pressed with No. 2 dramatic companies, a film $1800 for one passing night. In the meantime New York waited for "Straight Thru the Door."

IF you are willing to take William Hodge's word for it, there is more to a theater area than the stuffed regions bounded by Broadway and a couple of side streets. How intelligently he may understand this may be taken from the simple observation that any new Hodge play—and he does 'em right smartly every second season—swallows all the rurals before taking pot luck with mischievous Manhattan.

"DIPLOMACY" IS PRIZED

Victorien Sardou and been before the playgoing public upward of 29 years, the author of some 40 dramatic works produced on the Paris stage, e'er in was deemed to have worthily earned his associate in the French Academy. It was the production of his great melodrama "Diplomacy," in 1877, that wrought his title deed to that honor.

It was owing to the significance of this play to its own people through fifty years and the precarious quality of its acting theory that George C. Tyler selected it this year as the sequel to "The Rivals" and "Peg o' My Heart" for the all-star presentation it will have next week at the Colonial.

The spy mania was one of the burning questions of the day when "Diplomacy" was written, but public interest in the play was greatly quickened by a singular coincidence. Shortly after the first performance there was a public scandal concerning an American woman said to have been a prime spy and a close friend of the French premier at Metz. The two scenes in the play are the Baron Stein and the Countess Zicka, and the plot turns upon the theft by one or them of important papers from an embassy.

MARION SWAYNE will play the little girl who is altogether too much interested in the underworld of "Crime" at the St. James.

All Curiosity

HUB IS HOME TO PODMORE

William Podmore, English actor, who has been seen here in excellent characters parts at the Copley, is returning to Boston next week to play the lead in "Grimaldi," which is from his own pen, at the Hollis.

William Podmore as the Marquis of Queensberry and John Philip Kemble, the noted Shakespearean actor.

With his "Grimaldi" Mr. Podmore revives the famous "Second Empire" period in English society and the stage. He presents the great figures of that day, including Richard Brinsley Sheridan, art and play wright of the Prince of Wales, later George VI. of "Lady" drew unreserved critical approval.

Whorf Returns to Copley After Broadway Debut

Richard Whorf, Winsloop youth has returned to the ranks of the E. Clive organization at the Copley Theatre after an absence of several months, during which time he made his bow on Broadway. Mr. Whorf was given a brief leave of absence by Mr. Clive in order to appear in "The Banshee," a mystery piece that played for nearly two months in New York. Upon his return to the Copley Mr. Whorf was assigned to the task of providing the colorful sets used in "Yellow Sands," the current piece at that playhouse.

HOLLIS—"Grimaldi," a drama by William Podmore, who also appears in the title role. A costume play of the 19th century, glorifying in its own way the pathetic "Joey" Grimaldi, the clown who set the fashion which still rules the English stage. In the supporting cast are Stanley Harrison, Frank Elliott, Etienne Girardot, John Brewster, H. R. Carvill, Gerald Rogers, John Gray, Grace Hampton and Adele Klaer. Staged by John L. Shine. Produced by Rohman and Cohen.

SHUBERT—"Gay Paree," a Shubertian revue of 49 scenes and variegated entertainment. There are sketches, songs and tableaux. In the cast are Charles "Chic" Sale, Rita Gould, Douglas Leavitt, Frank Gaby, Alice Boulden, Ben Holmes, Agie Titus, Lorraine Weimer, Jennie Beach, Ruth Lockwood, Paul Davis, Kelo Brothers, Irene Cornell, Esther and William Montgomery. Produced by the Shuberts.

* * *

ST. JAMES—(Stock) "Crime," a melodrama of the underworld by Samuel Shipman and John B. Mayer. The story concerns the adventures of a boy and girl who are thrown into the affairs of a band of crooks. An augmented company, numbering 50, presents the play. In the principal roles are Marion Swayne, Henry Wadsworth, Walter Gilbert and Clara Joel. Staged by Charles Schoffeld.

GAYETY—(Burlesque) "Frivolities of 1928," featuring Frank Harcourt and Vivian Kent. A combination of musical comedy vaudeville and incidental entertainment. In the supporting cast are Betty Van, Billy Emerson, Bee Dalton, Allen Forth, Joe Mulvey, Leslie Fields and Stan Stanley. A chorus of singing and dancing damsels makes its own contribution. Produced by the Renee Amusement Company.

More of Ziegfeld

VIVIENNE OSBORN and many other songsters will come to the Colonial a week from Monday in Mr. Ziegfeld's "Three Musketeers."

PLANS SMALL TOWN CLUB

Almost every creed, race and class has it clubs and organizations; only the small towners are unorganized, according to "Chic" Sale, star comedian of "Gay Paree," which comes to the Shubert Monday. Sale promises to rectify the lack by founding an organization of men and women who were born or brought up in the best communities of the land. The large portion of urban population comes from the Upper Sandusky, Mineola and Mt. Horeb is an acknowledged fact. With such a common background, mutual aims and viewpoints command such a brotherhood. This Sale proposes to do. He is at present working on the scheme, and in company with several prominent graduates from the hinterland, hopes to make his plans public shortly.

"Chic" Sale

While his present project is sent purely conceited, the comedian received his cue from a facetious society founded by himself during the days he attended Ohio State. Members were caused to hang one foot out of the buggy—it was before the days of the gas juggernaut—while the password was "Hello, Roy."

POLA NEGRI'S NEW FILM PLEASING

No doubt about it—Pola Negri has come into her own in the matter of splendid, interesting pictures.

"The Secret Hour," which had its first showing yesterday at the Metropolitan, measures up to the extraordinary success of her three preceding vehicles "Hotel Imperial," "Barbed Wire" and "The Woman on Trial."

The new opus is different in theme than the others, being a well sustained love drama with a setting in the orange groves among Americanized Latins of simple tastes and strong, natural emotions.

Pola is sought in marriage by proxy by Jean Hersholt, cast as an affluent rancher of middle age, so fearful she will not marry him and employs the ruse of having Kenneth Thomson, as his handsome young foreman, unwittingly do the courting for him. Thomson does so well that he wins and weds the lady. Both of them earn Hersholt's rage but are forgiven in the end.

The star is fascinating and displays great charm and ability. She has exceptionally strong support in Jean Hersholt, who is a star in his own right, and from Kenneth Thomson, who is gaining fame as a leading man.

Rowland V. Lee, who directed Miss Negri in "Barbed Wire" was the man behind the megaphone in "The Secret Hour," having also written the story for the screen.

The picture is an excellent entertainment, skilfully handled and alive with romance.

Lucretia Goddard to Give Concert in Symphony

Boston music lovers will hear Lucretia Goddard for the first time in concert when she appears in Symphony Hall Sunday evening, March 4, in joint recital with Mario Basiola, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company.

Miss Goddard, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Bush of Chestnut Hill, is the young society girl who appeared with the Savage Opera Company a year ago. She has recently returned from Italy.

BELA BARTOK PLAYS WILD CONCERTS

By MOSES SMITH

Bela Bartok, Hungarian composer and at present the most discussed man in music, is soloist in his own piano concerto at the symphony concerts of this week. Preceded by the Introduction and March from Rimsky-Korsakov's opera, "Coq d'Or," and followed by Tschaikovsky's "Pathetique" Symphony, this novelty had been long anticipated here.

After a stimulating performance of the Rimsky music the audience saw a rather timid figure, small, lean, with head scarcely covered by white-grey hair, being led on the stage by Mr. Koussevitzky. He seemed the very antithesis of the wildness that was said to characterize his concerto.

As the pianist played the opening measures to the accompaniment of chords in the orchestra we wondered at their harmonic simplicity. Was this the earth-shaking primitivism? But as the music progressed this primitivism became more audible.

Slow movement and finale passed quickly, ended abruptly. We began to understand why this music had created such a stir. The wildness lies not in noise and tumult. Bartok writes sparingly for orchestra throughout. In fact the piano stands out remarkably clear. But the musical ideas are untamed in their rugged beauty, if such the curious appeal may be called. It is a nervous, fretful music of amazing variety of rhythmic patterns. A music of the future—or perhaps of the distant primeval past—too strange to grasp at a single hearing. It sounded totally unlike it is its high-geared neuroticism.

And the audience? It was polite, very polite, to Bartok and his music—and very cool. It had listened compulsantly, almost bored, Tschaikovsky and Koussevitzky revitalized it, so that more than once it interrupted the course of a remarkable performance by applause.

JUST BEFORE DAWN

ON THE GROUND, Richard Tucker explains a bit of sky technique to Richard Arlen and Charles Rogers, the high-flying aces in "Wings." Both boys are ready for an early morning ride in the clouds. (Tremont).

STAGE AND SCREEN

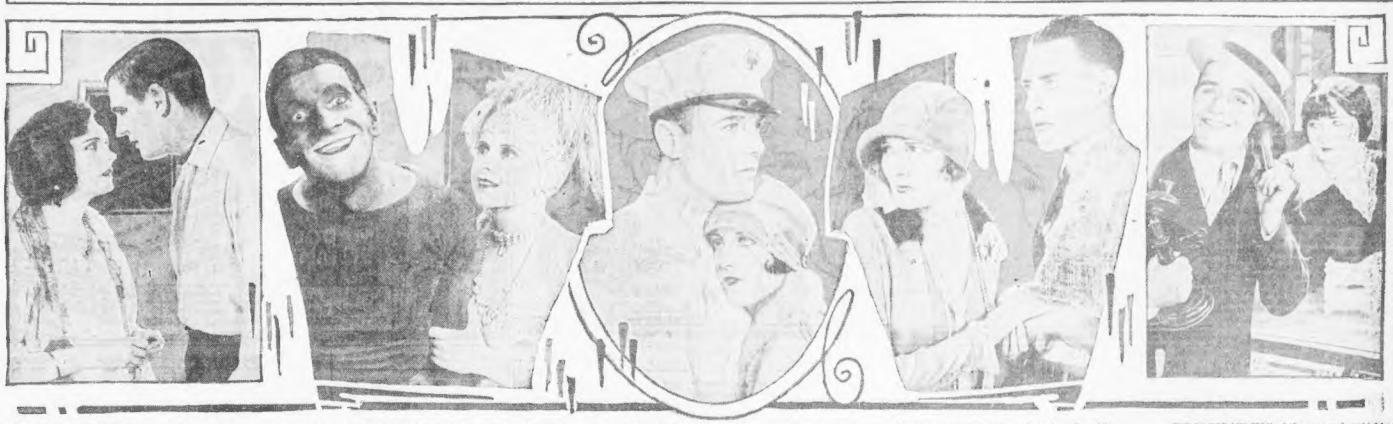
Reason in All Things

Richard Barthelmess, star of "The Patent Leather Kid," war film at the two Olympias and Fenway, had to "break in" a pair of army boots while on location. After struggling for an hour to get them off, Barthelmess said he understood why the old frontiersmen died with their boots on.

Signals Slightly Mixed

Mr. Yudelson, that quaint Jewish comic in Al Jolson's "The Jazz Singer," at the Modern and Beacon, is observed fumbling about in the stage-door sequence. "Can't you read?" growls a hard boiled stage hand, pointing to a No Admittance sign. "Sure," says Yudelson, "I ain't smoking."

GRIM MELODRAMA VIES WITH PLEASANT NONSENSE IN FRESH OUTPUT OF FILMPLAYS



GUILTY CONSCIENCES, nothing like them for bringing two conspirators together. Pola Negri and Kenneth Thompson exchange worried looks in "The Secret Hour" at the Metropolitan.

MAMMY'S BOY, Al Jolson, smiles through his stove polish to let you know he is still on the job boosting for dear old Dixie. May McAvoy encourages the famous one-man publicity bureau in "The Jazz Singer" at the Modern.

THE UNIFORM AGAIN?—ask the man who owns one—any subway guard will tell you. This is "West Point" at the Orpheum in which Joan Crawford is aided and abetted by William Haines.

LITTLE PUZZLE: The photoplay is "Man, Woman and Sin" at Loew's State. John Gilbert is the man, Jeanne Eagels is the woman, and the other —well, what do you expect for 50 cents plus tax?

FIRST STRAW HAT of the season is existably sported by James Hall in a gay entertainment called "Silk Legs" at the Keith-Albee Boston. Elsa Dean looks her admiration.

JOLSON IS TAMED TO FIT FILM HARNESS

By LEO GAFFNEY

CONSPICUOUS enough among the new week's attractions is a pair of films shows signalizing the debut of two stage stars on the screen. Al Jolson "comes out" at the Modern and Beacon today in "The Jazz Singer," with words and music via Vitaphone; while Jeanne Eagels will silently bow to a picture audience Monday at Loew's State in something rather bluntly described as "Man, Woman and Sin." In spite of the natural fortitude of each, sidling up to a camera for the first time must have been an uneasy experience. For of all human antics, there is nothing to make you feel more like a trotting horse on exhibition than to be put through your paces under the booming megaphone of a director of motion pictures.

As most personages of the stage are far past the age of playing horse, it may be readily understood why Mr. Jolson shied away from D. W. Griffith awnile ago when that worthy conralled "the world's greatest entertainer" and attempted to break him to the camera. But even the lure of heavy sugar—held to the noses of all good performers in the movie circuits—could not harness the bucking Jolson.

Al Jolson

It may be supposed that Ringmaster Griffith also used more persuasive measures, but all to no avail. The Great Untamable, pawing the ground nervously, suddenly reared straight up in the air, plunged for the fence, cleared it at a bound and then went streaking off to his old stamping ground. Yes, sir, Mr. Jolson was a wild, free spirit! He might work himself into a lather while bleating for "Mammy, Ma-a-aahm-mee!"; on bended knee he might plead and pray for the privilege of a speedy return to and a happy death in the "Dix-ee" that can hardly have interested him to such an extreme; he might toil like a mule anywhere near footlights—well, he might do almost anything except be tethered on a movie lot.

What actually happened was that Al Jolson found himself unable to plug his stuff in the slow, deliberate manner of how a director would say, "Steady now, Al, put your left foot forward . . . now walk ever so slowly over to that chalk mark on the floor . . . WALK, I said, not run . . ." all this was too much for the prancing buffoon who yearned to be back in the theater, popping among the girlies, raising the roof and "kickin' a hole in the sky." And besides! Mr. Jolson had seen himself in some "rushes" in the projection room! His sense of humor told him he would never be a movie actor until—

THIS is where Warner Brothers, the Vitaphone, and Director Alan Crosland come in. The Brothers Warner offered "The Jazz Singer," a form-fitting story; Vitaphone offered its own medium for song, and Mr. Crosland, goodness knows how, bridled and saddled the heretofore Untamed, and "gentled" him into unbelievable docility. Ladies and gentlemen, today at the Modern and Beacon, a Daniel come to Judgment, Bucephalus brought to book, Al Jolson himself—in a motion picture.

ACTORS' FUND ENLARGED

Boston's annual benefit performance in behalf of the Actors' Fund of America, under the auspices of the Allied Theater Managers of Massachusetts, brought a big Thursday afternoon audience to the Colonial and replenished the Fund by approximately $5000.

As has been the case yearly without exception, the Fund audience got ten times more than its money's worth, leaving the theater in the condition of a healthy 10-year-old boy at 5 o'clock on Thanksgiving afternoon.

Leon Errol was master of ceremonies. Smith and Dale sent a thousand laughs from "The Fire House." Willie and Eugene Howard got a thousand more. Elizabeth Murray "stopped the show" with her songs. Something brand new was Norman Levy's "short historical skit," introducing George Washington, U. S. Grant, Mary Queen of Scots and Napoleon Bonaparte, and entitled, "Washington and the Boys." The players were Philip Merivale, Mimi Wisenfeend, Joyce Carey and Barry Jones.

William T. Hodge thanked everybody in the name of President Daniel Frohman (great applause) and Jane Cowl expressed the gratitude of all player folk, everywhere. Others whom Mr. Errol hossed around were Johnny Sully and Muriel Thomas; Vera Myers, John T. Gargin and Virginia Clark.

WHAT'S WHAT With Shows REMAINING

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

Leon Errol in "Yours Truly" at the Majestic. (Third week.) Mr. Errol's loose legs appear to be doing very well in the promotion of art.

Jane Cowl in "The Road to Rome" at the Wilbur. (Fifth week.) In which Hannibal shows discriminating taste while playing host to lady friends.

"Yellow Sands" at the Copley. (Second week.) Mr. Cline renews happy acquaintance with his own company—and steals the show.

"Wings" at the Tremont. (Tenth week.) Blood and thunder of war, with American fliers as the actors.

William Hodge in "Straight Thru the Door" at the Plymouth. (Third week.) Mr. Hodge's well-known brand of humor mixed with some real lyrics.

FILM FARE FOR NEW WEEK

METROPOLITAN—Pola Negri in "The Secret Hour" (first run), screen play written and directed by Rowland V. Lee. Being the dramatic state of affairs of a farmer whose fiancee is wooed and wed under his very eyes by the foreman. Cast includes Jean Hersholt, Kenneth Thompson and George Periolat. A Paramount picture. On the stage, John Murray Anderson's "Roman Nights" spectacle, with Al Mitchell and band.

LOEW'S STATE—Jeanne Eagels and John Gilbert in "Man, Woman and Sin" (first run), screen play written and directed by Monta Bell. A modern drama involving sex difficulties, the newspaper "game" and a murder trial. Cast includes Gladys Brockwell and Marc McDermott. A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. On stage, a tabloid production of Richard Herndon's "Merry-Go-Round" revue.

MODERN AND BEACON—(Starting today) Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" (first run), adapted from the play by Sampson Raphaelson. Human interest story of the son of a Jewish cantor who goes upon the stage. Vitaphone accompanies the film, thus affording the star plenty of chance to be heard in song. The cast includes May McAvoy, Warner Oland, Richard Tucker and Cantor Josef Rosenblatt. Alan Crosland directed. A Warner Brothers' picture. Other Vitaphone features.

* * *

OLYMPIA, SCOLLAY, FENWAY—Richard Barthelmess in "The Patent Leather Kid," adapted from the story by Rupert Hughes. War drama of service in the Tank Corps. The star seen as an ex-prize fighter doing his best with a gun. The cast includes Molly O'Day, Arthur Stone, Hank Mann and Lawford Davidson. Al Santell directed. A First National picture. Also vaudeville at the two Olympias.

NEW BOSTON—(Starting tomorrow) Madge Bellamy in "Silk Legs" (first run), adapted from the story by Frederica Sazor. A little competition between two traveling hosiery salesmen. The cast includes James Hall, Matde Fulton and Joseph Cawthorn. Arthur Rosson directed. A William Fox picture. Also vaudeville.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—William Haines in "West Point," story of a "swell-headed" cadet who joins the Corps and turns civilized. The cast includes Joan Crawford and Neil Neely. Edward Sedgwick directed. A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. Also vaudeville.

NOTHING TO OVERTAKE

"There's only one reason why airplane stuff, as the motion picture workers call it, usually fails to furnish the interest it is intended to give," says William Wellman, director of "Wings," at the Tremont, and that is that it has no background."

"Think over the problem," he continues, "a motion on the screen is a relative thing. A horse runs on ground or leaps over fences or streams. We know he is going rapidly because of his relation to the immobile ground. Automobile races are similar; they have been photographed many times because the spectator can see and judge their speed in relation to the road or track they are running on. Thus the race in 'Ben Hur' is thrilling; we have the chariot race against a tremendously interesting background of excited people.

"Now realize the physical problem in making airplane scenes. There are three ways in which they can be pictured. First, with the camera on the ground pointing into the air. Second, with the camera stationary in the air, as in a captive balloon. Third, with the camera moving in the air—in another airplane.

"Each way has its peculiar difficulty. With the camera on the earth the airplanes are usually so distant that the speed is lost on the screen, and, moreover, the objects are small and remote. With the cameras in a balloon, or on a high tower, the range of activity in the air is necessarily limited; there are few dramatic things an airplane can do within range of a camera so situated."

VAUDEVILLE CHANGES

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—Emile Boreo in character songs; Burns and Allen and Marguerite, dancing stars, in their "Coral Gables Revue"; Cronin and Casey in "The Shrinking Violet"; Plant and Calvin in "Fifty-Fifty"; other turns and films.

* * *

R. F. KEITH'S—Sybil Vane, "Prima Donna Petite"; Jerry and "Her Baby Grands," musical act; Ada Howe, comedienne; Johnny Berkes and Virginia Sully in "Maybe, Who Knows?" other acts.

Leginska Plays Concert at the "Met" Tomorrow

Ethel Leginska, pianiste at the Metropolitan tomorrow afternoon, has just returned from St. Louis, where she appeared as guest conductor with the St. Louis Symphony orchestra.

Her activities during the past winter have been numerous. Recently she has been conducting rehearsals with the Women's Symphony.

Tomorrow afternoon she will be the soloist with the Metropolitan Salon Ensemble, Arthur Geissler, director. The program is as follows: Overture, "Don Juan," Mozart; Minuet in G, No. 2, Beethoven; Piano Quintet, op. 44, Schumann; Slavonic Rhapsody, Friedmann.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Long and Short of It

Abbott Adams, of William Hodge's "Straight Thru the Door" company at the Plymouth, believes he has the record for both the longest and shortest engagements. Fifteen years with Richard Carle is one. The second, a single performance in Syracuse with "Ninety In The Shade."

The Retort Courteous

When E. E. Clive, as the rum-soaked old loafer in "Yellow Sands," at the Copley, hears the dismal news that his more affluent sister's sole bequest to him is two pair of shoes, he mourns: "Did she think I had four feet?" "Well," says another character, "I've seen you when you needed 'em."

"FOUR WALLS" WILL TAKE TO FILMS

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Feb. 18—I have always maintained that John Gilbert has an exploratory mind. There is no row that he will not experiment with sooner or later. A very wise thing in this business, where so many of our players suffer from a similarity of poses.

"Four Walls," purchased for him by Harry Rapf on his recent trip to New York, offers something entirely new. Dana Burnet and George Abbott, authors, have built their story on this old scene. "Four Walls" do not a prison make." Johnny plays a young man who is given a prison term and is eternally surrounded by criminals who want to make him return to their life.

Alice D. G. Miller, who will write the continuity, has been most kind to see the play, now on four. William Nigh will direct under Harry Rapen's supervision.

Dana Burnet, by the way, the young man who authored "Four Walls," is in Hollywood. Probably he will give his advice to Jack Gilbert on the characterization.

DAVID WARK GRIFFITH, just back from New York, is concentrating on his cast for "The Birth of the Soul." To my knowledge, he has looked at three dozen films in an effort to get just the right characters.

Yesterday he made up his mind that Bebe Bennett was the type for one of the leading characters in "The Battle of the Sexes." He had talked with her, studied her photographs and looked at various films before he reached this conclusion. "Drama of Love," by the way, has received editorial notice in almost every high-brow magazine.

I think that pleased D. W., and I amused him as well, for he has been the target in the past for jokes in the intellectuals, on account of his proneness to sentimentality. Handing me one of these magazines to read, he said, smiling: "At last I get into the highbrow class."

Grant Mitchell Left Law for Stage's Glitter

Grant Mitchell.

Romance has said that honest confession is good for the soul. Well then, the limited wealth, or whatever there is given on such an occasion, should be handed gracefully to Grant Mitchell, star of "The Baby Cyclone," coming to the Hollis for that gentleman has admitted that he not only studied law at Harvard—Princeton papers please copy—but after graduating, and the word is used advisedly, he decided to benefit himself and all possible future clients by doing something else. He did. He became an actor.

Dennis King Stars in the New Ziegfeld Musical

Dennis King, one of the notable young English players to spring into American distinction, is starred in Florenz Ziegfeld's operetta production of "The Three Musketeers," which comes to the Colonial on Monday evening, February 27. He will, of course, appear as the elegant D'Artagnan, ever ready for a fight or a frolic, and much adored by ladies of his period, whether they were of royal court, or beautiful commoners.

Like most true British gentlemen, Dennis King is modesty reticent about himself. Only 39 years ago he was born in Coventry, England, the town, where, in the long ago, Lady Godiva rode through the public thoroughfares giving a beauty demonstration that was a strong argument against bobbing feminine hair.

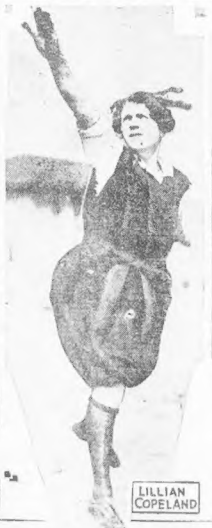
SIGNS UP IN BENEDICT LEAGUE. Freddy Lindstrom of the New York Giants, rated as one of the best third basemen in the National League, has made a new contract. He married Miss Irene Kiedisch of Chicago.

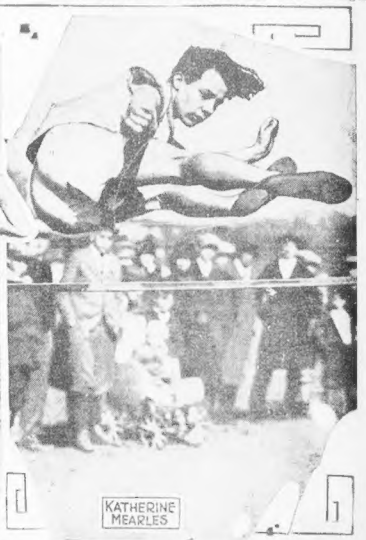
AMERICA'S HOPE IN HOLLAND. This quintette of feminine track athletes is expected to wear Uncle Sam's colors to glory this summer. Miss Mildred Wiley, above, is a Boston girl. She specializes in the high jump. She holds the national indoor record of 4 ft. 11 in. Miss Wiley made her record last Thursday.

A SMILE FROM CALIFORNIA. Miss Margaret Jenkins will be one of America's mainstays in the pole vault. She has won many prizes in western tournaments for women and she is considered a champion in her event.



OUR CHAMPION. Miss Lillian Copeland is considered to be one of the best all-around women athletes in the world. She is proficient in many events. Miss Copeland hails from California.

NATIONAL TITLE HOLDER. Miss Rena MacDonald, one of New England's greatest feminine athletes, holds the national indoor record for the eight-pound shot. She heaved the iron ball 37 ft. 11 in. She is practically certain to be selected.



N. E. BROAD JUMP CHAMP. Miss Katherine Mearles, one of New England's best, will try to compete in the Olympic games as a broad jumper. She holds the national broad jump record and she tied the record for the 50-yard dash. She will compete in both events this summer.

RING BOARD CONDEMNS DECISION

Names Humbeck as Roberti Opponent After Weird Finding in Favor of De Mave

By JACK CONWAY

JACK HUMBECK will get the bout with Roberto Roberti at an Argonne A. A. show on March 5 as a result of a decision of the Massachusetts Boxing Commission after a weird finding which gave Jack DeMave a victory over the Belgian.

When Humbeck and DeMave entered the ring at Mechanics Building, it was announced that the winner of their bout would clash with Roberti. The decision of Referee Johnny Martin and Judges John Gaskin and Pat Moran gave the fight to DeMave.

The verdict caused one of the wildest uproars ever witnessed after a bout in Boston. The crowd shouted its disapproval.

Jack Conway

Humbeck had earned the battle to DeMave and in the first two rounds had the better of a rather tame fight on. I didn't think there was any question of Humbeck having won. Even upon the verdict which at first stunned the crowd and then caused it to jeer, one can see no reason for Humbeck's opponent getting the ringside and through it send the officials. It was necessary to call upon a police detail to restore order at the ringside.

When Battling Levinsky and Jack Gagnon entered the ring for the semi-final, which was set on edge the main bout, the uproar continued. A band played heavily in an attempt to quiet the fans, but it was not successful.

Matchmaker Eddie Mack of the Argonne Club then went into conference with Boxing Commissioners Eugene Buckley and Joe Hurley, who were at the ringside.

It was then announced that the Commission had named Humbeck as Roberti's opponent for the March 5 date.

THIS decision by the Commission voiced its opinion of the finding of the officials in the bout between DeMave and Humbeck. The Massachusetts Commission knows that a decision once given, good or bad, cannot be reversed. It and the next best thing by declaring that Humbeck rather than DeMave was entitled to the shot with Roberti.

Most of the abuse of the crowd was directed at Referee Johnny Martin. The third man in the ring is always the target of the howls.

Under the Massachusetts system, the decisions of two judges and referee are not announced. It is possible that Martin voted for Humbeck in view of the fact the Commission clearly overruled the decision of the officials. I have been told that the two judges and the referee should be made public.

HUMBECK didn't take a backward step all through the bout. He stepped in the ring during the two closing rounds of the bout and had DeMave in poor condition in the last.

In the semi-final, Battling Levinsky showed too much ring wisdom for Jack Gagnon.

The best fight of the show was the 10-round tussle between Jimmy Brown of Philadelphia and Homer Robertson of this city. It was a sensational affair from start to finish.

In the second round, the heavy thumping Brown dropped Robertson on two occasions the first time for a count of nine by a right to the chin and on the second occasion with a left hook to the jaw. Robertson didn't take the benefit of any part of the count following the second knockdown. He jumped right up and almost tipped Brown over with a right to the point of the jaw.

Hazen Hussen displayed plenty of socking power as he battered Joe Smith over the six-round route. Hussen sent Smith down for a nine count in the fourth round.

Johnny Lynch of Roxbury outpointed Owen Flynn of South Boston in a four-rounder.

Mello Trains for Hudkins Bout

With a fighting confidence in his own ability to defeat Ace Hudkins at the Arena a week from Monday night, Al Mello, the famous mill boy from Lowell, continued training yesterday afternoon before a crowd that packed the gymnasium to its capacity.

Mello has been plugging along for the past year, and by his hard and punch, has kept himself among the leaders in the welterweight class. The only real defeat he has ever suffered was at the hands of Hudkins, in a New York ring. Never defeated in a Boston ring, Mello will make a great bid to keep his slate clean a week from Monday.

BURNING ICE

These two lads are the leading scorers in the Hub high school hockey league, better known as the "Morning Glory" circuit. At left is George Shine, captain of the Latin school six, and, on right, is Gerald Hughes, greatest of English high puck chasers. The latter has scored nine goals to date and the former one less. Their great work all season has kept their respective teams in a tie with Dorchester high for first place in the race.

YANKEE SLED MAKES BEST TIME

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 18 (AP)—The American bobsleigh team headed by William Fiske today made the best time in the first descent in the six-man Olympic run. Another descent will be made tomorrow, the total times to determine the winner.

The Fiske team negotiated the Olympic chute in 1 minute 1 and 4 seconds. Belgium was second and Argentine third. The British team was led by Edward Oughton Lambert and the Argentines by Arturo Gramajo. The English team led by Cecil Pine was fourth. Switzerland and Great Britain tied for ninth place. John Heaton's American team was ninth.

Switzerland Ice Team Loses to Sweden

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 18 (AP)—Sweden defeated Switzerland, 4 to 0, in the hockey matches of the winter Olympic games.

The Swedish-Swiss match was regarded as one of the roughest Olympic hockey matches ever played.

Canadian Hockey Team Easily Defeats England

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 18 (AP)—Canada defeated Great Britain 14 to 0 today in the Olympic hockey games. The Canadians scored six in the first period, five in the second and four in the last.

At no time were the Canadians extended to win. William Cook, Bobby Spencley, the British goal keeper, witnessed a continuous bombardment, stopping at least 150 cannon ball shots.

Norway Wins Ski Jump; U. S. Takes Fifth Place

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Feb. 18 (AP)—Norway took the lead with Johan Grottumsbraaten, its star, in unofficial standing of the Olympic ski-jumping today, the Finland "flying horse" that would have kept most men off the mark. He took the jump in splendid style, finishing unscathed in spite of the high wind blowing in gusts.

The ski-jumping event, which was part of yesterday's 18-kilometer race, he jumped only once and then failed to qualify to add to himself for the real Olympic leap.

Thorleif Haug, Norwegian veteran, who won the event, which was timed only on distance, followed. He is Albert Andersen, Norwegian, who is 18 years old. Haug, Norway, 83.66 (2) Reckagel, Germany, 80.16; (3) Josef Carlsson Sweden, 80.16; (4) Ingolf Dahl, Norway, 79.50; (5) Ole Hasvold, Norway, 79.50; (6) Andrea Hongen, United States, 78.33.

The longest individual jump of the day was made by Jacob Thams of Norway, who leaped 78 meters, but made a bad landing. It is expected that the event will disallow the distance, which would have beaten the world record by one meter.

Runyon Says Welsh Led 'Smart' Fighters

By DAMON RUNYON

IT is my opinion that the most intellectual professional fighter the modern ring has produced was Freddy Welsh, once lightweight champion of the world, who died some months ago.

That he was a great fighter of his type, I think no one will deny. He was a remarkable defensive boxer, better than any we have today, not barring Tommy Loughran. Freddy had a style that I do not care for myself, though I appreciate the science thereof and recognize its strict conformity to what we call "The Art of Self-Defense."

With Welsh, self defense was indeed an art. And that he combined with it a fine aggressiveness was shown by the fact that no beat some master-boxers in his time.

He was on the down-grade when he finally lost his title to Benny Leonard, though I think Leonard at his very best would have run second to the Welsh of the Packy McFarland and Willie Ritchie fights.

That, of course, is a mere matter of opinion, however. Leonard became a great fighter after he won the title from Welsh. Still, he couldn't do much with Welsh before that, and they never met again.

I think it was just as well for Welsh. He was never able to fight much after that defeat in the old Manhattan Casino.

It was one of the biggest pugilistic upsets in the history of the game. A little chance did anyone give Leonard for beating Welsh by a knockout—the only way Leonard could take over the title in those days—but that is exactly what happened when the thing came off. They all thought Welsh would outbox Leo in his way through 15 rounds.

WELSH, by dint of much reading and study, acquired considerable education. He had innate refinement and developed no little culture. I never knew a more gentlemanly boxer, even in this day and age when they are all trying to be gentlemen.

Freddy loved to read, and he gathered a surprisingly large and well selected library. I suppose it went down with the rest of his affairs in the ill-fated health farm venture down in New Jersey. That health farm was many years Freddy's big dream. He was a strong exponent of physical culture and long before it had catfaced in any money he used to talk to me of his cherished plans.

I imagine that the collapse of that venture had something to do with finishing his health. At least it discouraged him beyond anything that ever happened to him, and his early career as a boxer was a story of one reverse after another. He had a difficult time mounting the championship, and after disaster overtook him in New Jersey he turned a brave face to the world.

He never asked anyone for anything. I doubt if many persons knew the real state of his affairs while Freddy was living. I am sure times never learned it from him, anyway. He was too proud to whine and went all to the last dinner candlelight with a bold swell. So I send up this medley of a letter with all the best wishes and love that one man can offer another."

I turned to hand the slip of paper back to "Bill" Mack, and he was blowing his nose with what struck me as unusual violence.

Well, he liked little Freddy Welsh, and so did I.

DORCHESTER HAS CHANGE TO LEAD

By defeating Mechanic Arts this morning, Dorchester high can place itself in an excellent position to cop the Morning Glory title for the sixth year in succession. In the concluding game of the season, next Thursday, the Red and Black draws an easy opponent, Commerce, while English and Boston Latin are fighting it out among themselves.

English is favored over Commerce this morning while Latin should have an easy time taking Boston Trade into camp.

Jamaica Plain is favored over Brighton in the opening game of the morning. The Charlestown-Hyde Park and the East Boston-South Boston games are toss-ups.

MOULTON NAMED TO LEAD BROWN FRESH

Providence, Feb. 18 — Wesley Moulton of Dorchester, N. H., Johnston of Providence and Jim Harnett of New York were elected respective captains of Brown's freshman hockey wrestling and basketball teams. Moulton and Johnson will lead combinations which have thus far gone undefeated this season.

Tie in Rifle League

Big Show at St. Joe's Tonight

With the largest entry list of the season, including all the topnotch simon pures of the district, the weekly amateur boxing tournament of the St. Joseph's T. A. S. A. Commercial Hall, Howdoin sq., tonight promises to be one of the most interesting of the season.

With bouts carded in seven championship classes, including two divisions of novices, followers of the game are expected to witness at least 40 bouts. Already 59 entries have been received.

The novices will participate in the bouts in the 125-pound and 147-pound classes, and their entries alone have provided more keen competition this year than any other division, with promising boys have been developed.

Tufts to Play N. H. Five Today

The Tufts quintet will journey to Durham today for their last away-from-home game of the season. New Hampshire, which drubbed the Jumbo five badly last year, will encounter plenty of acrimony opposition in its visitors, for Coach Manny's team is still smarting from last week's double defeat by Wesleyan and Amherst, and it is out for revenge.

Brookline Wins

Pawtucket, R. I., Feb. 18—Brookline High swimmers defeated Pawtucket High, 48 to 14, in a meet here. The only home team swimmers able to win a first place were Hyacko in the high dive and McClurgh in the 100-yard free style.

HUDKINS WINS OVER BAKER IN THRILLING GO

New York, Feb. 18—A wild swipe from the flailing paw of the Nebraska wildcat in the second round of his ten-round fight with Sergeant Sammy Baker at Madison Square Garden, which sent the soldier boy kicking for the count of nine, played a big part in giving Ace Hudkins, of Lincoln, the decision in the important "rubber" bout.

Hudkins also dropped Baker in the sixth. There was a cry of low blow, but the referee apparently had not seen it that way and he ordered Baker to his feet, and the soldier rose at the count of nine.

The fight between the wild Nebraska wildcat and the Mitchell Field soldier boy was one of the fastest seen in Tex Rickard's fight palace in many moons. Each had won a decision in a former fight, and the "rubber" bout was to decide an opponent for Champion Baltimore Joe Dundee in a title contest.

HUDKINS WILD

The wildcat was wild, both knockdowns came as the result of wild swings. The blow which dropped Baker in the sixth was a low swinging left, Another wild blow by the wildcat opened up a deep wound on Baker's nose up in the fifth which bled constantly throughout the remainder of the fight.

Hudkins is one of the ten rounds and qualified to meet Champion Joe Dundee for the title. The two were matched recently in Los Angeles, but Dundee failed to appear for the match and drew a suspension.

Baker's best fighting weapon was a vicious right uppercut. He staggered Hudkins with a right to the jaw in the eighth which has the Nebraskan holding on for his life.

The usual feeling out process was discarded and the soldier boy and the Nebraska wildcat were at each other sabre and claw as the opening gong sounded. Hudkins adopted his usual forcing style and flung rights and lefts in every direction.

BAKER'S ROUND

One solid right caught Sergt. Sammy flush on the point of the jaw toward the close of the first round and staggered the fighting man. Baker, however, was fighting the more scientific battle and won the round on points.

One of the wildcat's flailing paws landed plump upon Baker's jaw in the second and sent the soldier boy sailing to the canvas. Hudkins seemed almost as surprised as Baker and the crowd that the wild blow had landed. Baker rose at the count of nine and went into a clinch.

Baker seemed completely recovered from the random pot from the wildcat's claw in the third and took the session on points. The round developed into a game of tag with the fighters taking turns in leading. A rapid fire short left jab and a long range right were Baker's best fighting assets in the round.

The fourth developed several in which Hudkins was the leader.

The wildcat was not so wild in the fifth and one well-aimed right hand swing by Baker's mouth, opening a deep wound in his lower lip.

BAKER ON ROPES.

In the sixth a low sent Baker into the ropes. The referee didn't see the blow and asked Baker to get up, which he did at the count of nine.

Some fast infighting during the many wild exchanges that featured the seventh round gave the session to the wildcat.

A terrific right on the jaw nearly floored Baker in the eighth. He held on desperately to save himself from falling, and managed to last through the round. Baker tried desperately for a finishing punch.

The wildcat was wilder than ever in the ninth and seemed completely recovered from the soldier's heavy artillery of the eighth. A good infighting, however, won the round for him.

Hudkins took the tenth.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

MR. BOSTON looked rather lonesome as he ambled into the Sporting Department today.

"Why all the gloom?" asked Nick Flatley with his best Sahara accent.

"Am wondering who'll there be in this town to talk to after another week," replied the veteran.

"Whadaya mean?" queried an interested office boy.

"Everybody is leaving this burg," was the lonesome answer. "Dan Carroll, Honeyboy Finnegan and Jim Maloney are rattling over the rails to Hot Springs. Johnny Buckley, Tom Goodwin and Bobby Goldman are playing around over in New York.

"Alex MacLean just called me up on the telephone and told me he'd see me in six weeks or so.

"Whadaya mean six weeks or so'? I asked.

"Going away for a trip,' he answered.

"Where?'

"Hot Springs.' Then he hung up.

"Went up to the fights at Mechanics and Colonel Bob McKirdy mitted me and started to say good-by.

"I told him I'd call the cops if he didn't put on another record. The colonel then whispered something about a little trip to Hot Springs with the Missus.

"ON my way to the office I bumped into Joe Cashman, who was carrying a brand new traveling bag.

"I have known Joe since he was just that high, a kid in short pants, and I didn't want to see him go wrong.

"'Not bootlegging with that new bag?' I demanded.

"'Nop,' responded Joe. 'Going down to Florida with the Red Sox.'

"Mel Webb, whom I always allowed to sleep in the upper berth when we shared a section during some of those wild baseball trips in the days when Harry Frazee owned the Red Sox, paraded down Summer st. carrying enough bundles to fill an express truck.

"'Just bought a dozen or so new suits,' smiled Mel. 'You know I'm going down to Florida next Monday.'

"I WAS just beginning to believe that a cyclone or something was about to hit the town and that I was the only person who hadn't been tipped off to buy a railroad ticket and beat it for parts unknown when I bumped into Jack Sharkey on Washington st.

"'Are you going to Florida, Hot Springs or Europe?' I demanded.

"'Are you daffy?' he asked without a wmup.

"'Harry Kelley tells me he has a couple of sparring partners down at his gym for me and I want to get into action. Sure, I'd like to take a trip somewhere, but I've got to fight Risko on March 12.'

"I was glad to find that at least one person besides myself was going to remain in town."

"'I forgot to tell you,' interrupted Nick Flatley, "that the Hearst executives are holding a conference in Atlanta next week. All the bosses are making the trip."

Myles McSweeney informed Mr. Boston he was wanted on the telephone.

"Come home early today, if possible," came the voice of the commander-in-chief of the Boston forces over the wire from Jamaica Plain.

"'Why?' asked the veteran.

"'The kids want you to take them on a trip.'

"'Where do they want to go, Florida, Hot Springs or Europe?'

"'City Point. Now try and come home early as the kids will be waiting for you. They want to see that new seal over in the aquarium."

DOG STARS IN BIG SHOW

The champion dog of the year is coming to Boston next week. Galaway Margaret, the little wire haired fox terrier bitch, owned by Reginald M. Lewis of Chesterfield, Ct., wants to make it two in a row. She triumphed over 2400 other dogs in Madison Square Garden this week and is a favorite to duplicate this feat in the Eastern Dog Club show, which opens in Mechanics Building Monday and continues through Wednesday night.

Margaret will have no mean competition in attempting to repeat for more than 100 champions are included among the 1136 entries for the Eastern, including the bitch which was 1927 champion at the Garden and the wire which took the special for best in show last year.

English setters will be most numerous in this year's show, 200 having been entered in all. More than the totals registered by the fox terriers and Boston terriers, Shepherd dogs, which led last year's show, have dropped to 74.

Judging in the exhibition will have a chance to see 57 varieties of dogs, for that is the actual classification by breeds. Of these, the saluki, or gazelle hound, will be seen for the first time, while Irish wolfhounds and a giant schnauzer will make a reappearance in the stalls.

Miss Ryan Defeats Miss Bennett, 6-4, 6-2

Nice, France, Feb. 18 (INS)—Miss Elizabeth Ryan of California today got her revenge over Eileen Bennett of England, by defeating her today in the finals of the Hotel Provencal tennis tournament. The score was 6—4, 6—2. Miss Bennett had twice defeated the American girl earlier in the first, in the new courts tournament in January 21, when she won 6—4, 6—2 and then on February 5 in the Golfe matches when she won 6—3, 6—3.

PENN FIVE MAY QUIT LEAGUE

Philadelphia, Feb. 18—Chairman Ralph Morgan of the University of Pennsylvania Athletic Committee has received word from Ellwood W. Wright, of the Kolleckthorpe Company, secretary of the Intercollegiate Basketball League, that a meeting of the executive committee has been called for New York, either Monday or Wednesday, to act on Penn's protest of Thursday night's 30-29 game which Dartmouth won here.

Pennsylvania claimed the student scorers, J. Arthur of Dartmouth and Frank Graham of Pennsylvania, made their baskets in the closing minute of play, but in the first half which would have made the final score 30 to 30.

Chairman Morgan insisted that unless the game is ordered replayed, he would be in favor of Pennsylvania withdrawing from the league. Penn has made a contention that if the league agrees to a play-off, it be held either March 14 or 17 at the Palestra.

Stecher and Lewis Agree on Rules

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 18 (INS)—With rules for the match agreed on today, all arrangements for the battle between Joe Stecher, heavyweight wrestling champion and his challenger, Ed "Strangler" Lewis, for next Monday night have been completed. "Scissors Joe" has practically finished his training and will taper off with light road work today and Sunday, but the former champion will go through an arduous training period today before taking a rest.

Correct Manners—By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have met a young man who has asked if he may take me out, and I want to have my manners of the best. I have asked him to call at my home so that he could meet my ——. Was that correct?

2. What would be the best form of introduction when I present him to my family? What form of introduction to my friends and relatives?

3. When being introduced to men, what reply is the best to make? Also when being introduced to women?

4. After we come home from some entertainment the first time that we have been out together is it not my place to ask him to call again? In what words would it be most polite to do this?

5. When we are walking on the street together should I take his arm or should he take mine? If I am correct, he should take my arm in entering when we are crossing the street or getting into autos and so forth. A READER.

I AM delighted to help you, dear friend, with these interesting questions that you have sent me.

1. First, congratulations on your sure taste in inviting the young man to come to your home first and meet your family. He will appreciate this taste on your part, and will admire your breeding. If girls only realized what a "hit" this invitation makes with a well-bred man they would extend it more often.

2. Family invitations are more informal than other kinds of invitations, and the words this are often used. For instance, "Mr. Bailey, this is my mother," or "Mr. Bailey, this is my father."

But, to answer all the questions under this second question, let me give you a general suggestion. It is this: When you are introducing a man to a woman, it is always excellent taste to use the form: "Miss Lady, may I present Mr. Gentleman." If you will remember this, it will help you in many difficulties, and will become a convenient habit. For instance, it is an excellent form to use when you are introducing the young man to your mother: "Mother, may I present Mr. Bailey?"—"Aunt Julia, may I present Mr. Bailey?" and when you are introducing a man to a girl: "Miss Ford may I present Mr. Bailey?"

The form of introduction next best, to my mind, is the form that mentions only the names the form usually used when two men are introduced to each other, and is perfectly good form to use when we are introducing a man to a woman, when we perhaps do not wish to make the introduction quite so significant as the form that I have already suggested would make it. For instance, when introducing the young man to another young man, you would say, "Mr. Bailey, Mr. Adams," or, when presenting him to your father, you may say, "Father, Mr. Bailey" though this is not so good as the form above.

3. In acknowledging introductions of all kinds, the best form that we can use is "How do you do?" You may, if you are quite sure that you have correctly understood the name, add, "How do you do, Mr. Bailey?" Don't say, "Pleased to meet you" or any of those worldly forms that people take so much trouble to say—and mean so much less.

4. It is polite for you to invite the young man to call, and it is just as polite for him to ask for privilege of calling. If you wish to invite him to come, you might say, "I do hope that you will come to see me again soon," or "It will give me pleasure if you will come to see me soon again," or "Won't you come to see me some time, and I will arrange for a table of bridge?"

5. Neither takes the arm of the other—the man should never take the lady's arm—unless the girl needs assistance, as in crossing a crowded street.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it proper for a girl to accept a friendship ring from a friend of hers before she is engaged to him? A HEADER.

NO, it really isn't proper or in good taste for a girl to accept a friendship ring from a man unless she is engaged to him. Calling a ring a "friendship ring" doesn't make it different from any other ring (as far as the fact that it is a gift is concerned), nor does it alter the fact that such a ring is a piece of jewelry. And, as you know, Mrs. Grundy decrees that a woman must not accept a gift of jewelry from a man unless she is engaged to him.

LEFT OR RIGHT

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

(1) How does one eat a club sandwich?

(2) When two couples at a table, does one sit at the right or left of her escort?

(3) When taking a seat at the table does one sit down from the right or left side of the chair?

L. J. R.

WITH a knife and fork. Cut off a small piece at a time—a mouthful—and eat it before you cut off the next piece. And incidentally, to eat a club sandwich takes patience and some fairs.

(2) At the right.

(3) Usually from the left—but it doesn't make a bit of difference, really.

GOOD TIME GUY — The Marriage License — By Frank Smiley

COME ON, LIGHT O' MY LIFE, IT'S TIME TO GO OUT AND END OUR LIBERTY
WITH A LICENSE THAT WILL MAKE US TWO ONE---AND THAT ONE WILL BE YOU!
IT WILL IF I KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT IT!
MY JOKE ABOUT KISSING THE BRIDE THE OTHER NIGHT DIDN'T GO ACROSS, SO I'M COMING ACROSS WITH AN APOLOGY---LET'S KISS AND MAKE UP---I MEAN, LET'S MAKE UP!
MY MIND IS MADE UP TO ONE THING---THERE'LL BE ONLY ONE BEST MAN AT MY WEDDING, AFTER ALL, AND HE'LL BE THE GROOM!
JUST THINK, HON, THIS LITTLE PIECE OF PAPER GIVES US THE RIGHT TO BE TWO PERMANENT WAVES ON THE SEA OF MATRIMONY!
YOU BE A WAVE AND I'LL BE A BREAKER! (And what you should have got was a dog license to match the life you're going to lead!)

COOK-COOS by Ted Cook

THE CONGRESSMAN'S SON

Mother's brother, Hannibal, offered to say nothing about the matter if Frisby would get him appointed Chief of Prohibition enforcement.

CHAPTER XII.

NEVER did my mother feel much bitterness toward Congressman Frisby. She loved him too much for that.

In fact, mother hesitated about asking him to buy her shoes. She would first consult Emily Post's Book of Etiquette and find out just how to go about it.

I well remember our first trip to Washington. I had whooping cough, and mother wanted Mr. Frisby to buy some lozenges. We sat in the visitors' gallery of the House of Representatives.

Mr. Frisby was making a speech, and so, to attract his attention, my mother kept applauding, and I would whistle. But he merely bowed his thanks and pretended not to recognize us. Mother cracked peanut shells and stamped her feet, to no avail. She had brought a watermelon, for our lunch. Finally, her patience exhausted, mother jumped to a spot directly over papa's head. Then she took aim and dropped the melon. It was a direct hit. Did father stop talking? No. He went right on, wiping his head with his handkerchief—and even picked up a piece of our melon and munched at it between phrases.

It was this sort of thing that finally drove my mother in—

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

Let me tickle your feet, deaire, to see if you're crazy.

MRS. SOLOMON SAYS—

By HELEN ROWLAND.

WHEN a man's love dies a sudden and unexpected death, it is usually due to asphyxiation from the monoxide gas of a woman's jealousy.

Jealousy is the serpent that lurks under the rose of love in nearly every little Eden.

A man's love is seldom starved to death or frozen to death—it is nearly always stifled to death. Blowing the cold winds of indifference on his passion merely fans the flames. But one touch of jealousy acts like a fire-extinguisher.

A man is never as jealous as a woman, because once he has permitted a woman to love him, he cannot, in his sublime self-confidence, imagine how she could possibly want anything better.

Jealousy is the admission of an inferiority complex, and as far as a woman is concerned no man has an inferiority complex. It is never a mystery to him why a woman should love him. The only thing that could astonish him would be to discover that she had STOPPED loving him.

When a woman shows the first spark of jealousy, she flatters the other woman, and insults herself. Many a man would never know that he had ceased to love a woman if she did not keep reminding him of it.

A man may be jealous of another man. But a woman is subconsciously jealous of EVERYTHING.

She is jealous of a man's business, which keeps his mind off of her; of his club, which takes him away from her evenings; of his golf, his cronies, his mother, his sisters, his interest in books or baseball—and sometimes, even his appetite for a good beefsteak.

It is positively STIFLING! Woman's desire to absorb every corner of a man's heart and mind and thoughts is the tie that binds and binds and BINDS, until it chokes him.

A man is like a cat; he cannot be tied. And nothing so quickly gives him that TIED feeling as a woman's jealousy.

A woman may tread all over a man's heart with cruelty, selfishness, coquetry and caprice, without killing his love; but at the first tiny breath of jealousy it will flicker out and gasp its last.

Man is a free, free soul, filled with the spirit of Fun. As long as he feels unfettered, he may not care to roam; but at the first touch of a bonds, the first suspicion of a "claim," he is off—to the other woman.

Jealousy and "It" cannot exist under the same marcel wave; for "It" is based upon perfect self-assurance. And jealousy is always an admission of self-doubt. If you can't have faith in a man, at least have faith in YOURSELF. Don't hand the other woman all the trumps in the pack by being jealous!

Your Girl in College

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

BECKY finished high school and wanted to go to college. Most of her friends were going to college, and of course she wanted to go, too. Her parents had less than half enough money to send Becky off to school in good style, so they finally decided that their young daughter might as well go to the State University, where tuition was free.

Becky was talented, witty and exceedingly pretty; vivacious, daring and very appealing. She created a sensation among the college men when she stepped off the train. And that very day they began rushing her.

Now, Becky was not accustomed to swarms of young men clamoring for her smiles and dances and the attentions went to her head.

Every time she went to her room to study somebody called her on the telephone. Every time she walked into a classroom boys greeted her covertly but fervently. Every time she walked out of a classroom a young gentleman walked on either side of her, with others trailing along behind. On the evenings that she was permitted to have dates she had only to pick and choose her man.

On other evenings she answered soft whistles outside her window. Quite often she and her roommate lowered a small basket on the end of a string and then pulled it up full of good things to eat. All of which was delightful, exciting and demoralizing.

Every now and then she forgot a dormitory regulation or broke a college rule. The dean of women was a straight-laced, old-fashioned person, and Becky's conduct filled her with concern and confusion. So the minx—aided and abetted by her admirers—began inventing ways of outwitting the dean.

Becky never did anything worse than to dine and dance with boys at the fraternity house, or to slip off for an afternoon ride with a car full of kindred spirits, but those things were forbidden. Her escapades kept her in trouble most of the time and eventually hurt her standing among her fellow students. Altogether Becky had a most unprofitable year at school.

Barbara selected the State University because it offered good academic and teacher-training courses. She intended to teach, and wished to equip herself for the profession. Barbara was ambitious, earnest, serious-minded. She was pleasing in appearance, had good manners and a sweet disposition, but she lacked the suggestion of fresh and frivolity that made Becky overly popular.

Occasionally she accepted attentions from male students, but that did not interfere with her studies. She took part in college activities, in one literary society and in one religious organization.

For Barbara that co-educational school was fine.

For Becky it was disastrous. In some cases co-education is advisable, in other cases it is not. It all depends upon the temperament. The inclinations and the nature of the girl herself.
